ALLIES OPEN OFFENSIVE IN BALKANS

JAP CRUISER HIT SQUARELY IN BOMB RAID

AMERICANS TANGLE WITH ENEMY AT AUGUSTA BAY

BY MURLIN SPENCER

Southwest Pacific Allied Headquarters, Tuesday, Nov. 16 (AP)—A Japanese cruiser—latest in a series of cruisers to be smashed by Allied planes—has been directly hit and severely damaged by Catalinas off Rabaul, New Britain.

Headquarters, in reporting the air action today, also reported a large merchantman bombed by the Catalinas.

The cruiser was hit on the stern by a 1,000 pound bomb. A 500-pounder hit the merchantman amidships. At Empress Augusta Bay, the American beachhead on the west central coast of Bougainville Island in the northern Solomons, the marines and soldiers have clashed with Japanese patrols on the flanks.

Convoy Spotted

Seven enemy planes attacked the American positions at night, causing minor casualties.

Allied planes, attacking Japanese air bases at Buka, on Bougainville's northern tip, dropped 51 tons of bombs and destroyed four zeros on the ground.

Since a 350-ton bombing attack on Rabaul on Oct. 12 touched off the current operations in the Bougainville-New Britain sector, two cruisers have been sunk and more than 10 damaged by Allied planes at Rabaul.

The latest blows by the Catalina flying boats were scored Saturday night and in the pre-dawn of Sunday.

The cruiser was in a convoy spotted 18 miles northwest of Rabaul and moving toward that base. The 1,000 pound bomb penetrated the cruiser's armament and exploded inside. Anti-aircraft fire on the ships and enemy fighter planes forced the Catalinas to leave before they could determine if the cruiser sank.

Barge Destroyed

Later the Catalinas saw a second convoy moving away from Rabaul about 50 miles to its northwest. The planes dropped four 500-pounders, one of which struck the merchantman.

Fighter-escorted iMtchell medium bombers first hit the Buka area, spotting their targets by moonlight and dropping down to tree top height. Later in daylight, Liberators hit the Bonis airstrip area.

In the same general area, Allied fighters patrols attacked and probably destroyed a barge loaded with Japanese soldiers.

In addition to the enemy's light raid at Empress Augusta, 13 Japanese bombers attempted a daylight attack on Finschhafen, New Guinea, where General MacArthur's troops hold positions near the western tip of New Britain. Today's communique said the planes "dropped 30 bombs harmlessly in the harbor."

Northwest of Australia, Mitchells attacked Japan's Penfoei airdrome on the island of Timor. Their bombs started fires and explosions at night which were visible for 90 miles.

No Secret Agreements At Moscow, Hull Says

Washington, Nov. (AP) — Secretary of State Hull asked Americans today to accept as their non-political foreign policy the charter of international unity laid down in the Moscow pact, a document he termed free from secret commitments.

The people, he said at a press conference in which he made his first public report on the Moscow meeting, must carry forward the program of international cooperation for peace established at the American-British - Russian discussions last month, or they will have no program.

A reporter asked if he believed foreign policy should be taken out of politics, and he replied affirmatively. For a year, the secretary reported, he has been working toward a united foreign policy by conferring with leaders of all parties.

There has been generally bipartison approval in congress of the Moscow agreement. Hull is to address a joint session of the house and senate Thursday at noon, and in commenting on this today Senator Lucas (D-Ill) said, "I think his appearance will demonstrate the solidarity of American peace aims." Lucas could recall no other occasion in history when a cabinet member was invited to make such an appearance.

Among other points mentioned by Hull in his hour-long and unusually informal meeting with the press:

1. He is confident that the sound view of the American public is for creation of agencies to insure national security and world order under law.

2. The war-and-peace unity declaration of Moscow came about

KING OF EGYPT HURT IN CRASH

Royal Automobile And Truck Collide On Suez Canal Road

Cairo, Nov. 15 (AP)—King Farouk I of Egypt suffered a slight pelvic injury today when his automobile collided with a truck on the Ismalia road, along a bank of the Suez Canal.

The 23-year-old monarch was treated at a British army hospital.

A communique said: "Radiographs revealed a small crack, of not more than one centimeter, in the left iliac bone with small contusions. Doctors approved his removal to the palace tomorrow."

Farouk Became King of Egypt on April 28, 1936 after the death of his father, King Fuad I.

SCARCE LIQUOR ABUSES SIFTED

Rationing Violation By Package Dealers Is Alleged

Detroit, Nov. 15 (AP)—William P. Edmonson, chairman of the State Liquor Control Commission which met here today, announced that the commission has ordered its enforcement agents to investigate possible rationing violations by licensed package dealers and that the commission would begin an immediate analysis of its own departments.

Edmunson said that he was convinced that some licensed dealers are diverting the scarce liquor to favored bars and allowing customers to buy it without punching ration cards.

"SDD licensees are in fact agents of the state and pledged to rigid compilance with the rationing plan," he said. "If we find widespread abuse of the trust, defeating the very purpose of rationing, we won't hesitate to pick up the licenses."

He declared that the commission, which met in a special session to take up problems of distribution at Gov. Kelly's request, discussed substitution of special stamps for punched ration cards.

Woolworths Cited For OPA Violation

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe has granted a motion by the Office of Price Administration for a preliminary injunction restraining the F. W. Woolworth Co. fro allegedly violating provisions of a maximum price order governing ceiling prices for women's, girls' and children's outwear garments.

The company operates 1,858 retail stores. The OPA complaint charged that the company sold garments in 18 stores at higher prices than those permitted by the "highest price line" limitation between March 1 and July 1.

ESCAPE ROUTE FOR GERMANS IN GOMEL CUT

UKRAINE ARMIES ONLY 35 MILES FROM POLAND

BY JUDSON O'QUINN

London, Nov. 15 (AP)—The Red army cut the next to the last railway escape line for the Germans in by-passed Gomel today, while for to the southwest Gen. Nikolai Vatutin's forces.o were sweeping to within 35 miles of the pre-war polish border.

Inside the Dnieper bend, the German high command said, a huge fight was raging north and northeast of Krivoi Rog. It admitted early gains by Russian troops which Nazi propaganda broadcasts said numbered nearly 500,000.

Rail Station Seized

Pressing for a clean-up of axis communication lines through the Pripet marshes, the Red army converging on Gomel seized the rail station of Demekhi, 34 miles west of Gomel, and only eight miles west of Rechitsa, to cut the Gomel-Kalinkovichi railway and highway.

Other Russian units also are attacking north and south of Gomel itself, lower anchor of the axis line across White Russia, and the single escape avenue left to the Germans in that base now is the railway northwest of Zhlobin.

General Vatutin's northern Ukraine army had reached a point 42 miles west of fallen Zhitomir to take Baranovka, 35 miles from the old Polish border and 150 miles from the German-Russian border which existed in 1941 before the axis invasion of Russia.

Kerch Gains Extended

These Russian successes at widely separated sectors of the long front were tempered only by continued stiff German resistance at Fastov, 35 miles southwest of Kiev, on the road to the Rumanian border 145 miles away.

Turning south from Zhitomir, however, some of General Vatutin's cavalry and tank formations threatened the flank of the German army battling near Fastov, 50 miles to the southeast.

Not until today did the Germans acknowledge the fall of Zhitomir, which the Russians seized early Saturday after an all-night fight. They said axis troops had been withdrawn west and northwest of the rail and highway hub.

On the Kerch peninsula, where the Russians have opened the battle for the isolated Crimea, Soviet forces continued to fight for an extension of their bridgeheads north and south of the town of Kerch, the communique said.

The Soviet war bulletin still made no mention of the action in the Dnieper bend on an 80-mile east-west line between Krivoi Rog and Zaporozhe, but indicated the ferocity of the fighting along the entire front with an announcement that 114 German tanks were knocked out in Sunday's struggles.

Trap Still Menacing

Berlin broadcasts today again repeated that the Russians were attacking in the Dnieper elbow

WELCOME GIVEN TO REPATRIATES

Liner Gripsholm Brings 1502 Americans Home From Jap Camps

BY CHANDLER DIEHL

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 15 (AP) — The flag-bedecked liner Gripsholm docked this afternoon and 1,502 Americans set foot on American soil for the first time after eight to 21 months in Japanese internment camps.

The dockside was a crowded, happy scene as the gangplank was lowered and the repatriates became guests of honor of North American residents who were on hand since early morning preparing an elaborate welcome which includes shopping tours for the adults, parties for the youngsters and care and food for the infants

Chilean Ambassador Gonzalez Vidfela and members of the embassy staff were present to welcome 15 returning Chileans. Parties, likewise were on hand to greet the Argentines, other Latin Americans and Canadians.

Homes have been provided for orphans during their visit to Rio de Janeiro, and there were sleeping accommodations ashore for all. Winter clothing, needed for the trip north, was distributed to the visitors from servicemen's centers operated bp an American society.

Nation Needs Change, Says Gov. Bricker

Columbus, O., Nov. 15 (AP) — Gov. John W. Bricker, saying that "confusion and distrust reign throughout the land," asserted today the nation needs "a change of philosophy of government" and announced formally he was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1944.

The governor's statement said he would enter the Ohio primaries and put his name "before the Republican national convention." He told a press conference he had received "much encouragement" from states outside Ohio.

He renounced any bid for re-election to a fourth term and washed his hands of the mixed Republican gubernatorial picture in Ohio by telling newsmen, "I suppose the governor's race is wide open now—it isn't my problem any longer."

Bricker was critical of the New Deal in his statement, saying it had come to "the end of its service to the people."

Mackinac Talk Recalled

He recalled his statement at the Republicans' Mackinac Island conference in which he said the next president should serve one term without expectation of re-election, and a constitutional amendment be submitted to the people fixing a limit on a president's tenure of office.

Bricker touched lightly and carefully upon the international situation.

"As a result of our fighting the United States will be in a position of great power and responsibility among the nations of the world," he said. "All that power should be exercised with the deepest conviction that we have a great destiny to fulfill in America. We must keep ourselves strong, liberty loving, self-governing and use that power and influence throughout the world to bring about better international relations and to prevent the deadly destruction of war. x x x

"There must be responsible participation among sovereign nations to prevent military aggression and to attain permanent peace with organized justice in a free world."

SENATE OPENS WHISKEY INQUIRY

Hoarding And Evasion Of Taxes To Be Revealed In 'Startling Expose'

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)—The senate judiciary committee voted unanimously today to investigate the liquor industry. Chairman Van Nuys (D-Ind.) predicted a "startling expose" of what he called efforts of liquor monopolies to evade taxes and raise prices for hoarding huge stocks of whisky.

The committee voted approval of a broad resolution by Senator Cerugham (D-Nev.) for a subcommittee investigation of "business practices and operations" of the liquor industry.

Van Nuys told reporters the inquiry would start early next week with the calling of big distillery officials for questioning as to why "the retail liquor market suddenly dried up" when "there is enough liquor in this country to last five or six years."

The resolution asks $10,000 of senate funds to finance the inquiry, and while the expenditure must have the approval of the senate, Van Nuys said he anticipated no difficulty on that score.

He said that among other things, the distillers will be asked the "motive" behind the decision of some of them to declare "dividends to their stockholders in whisky."

(AP)—Governor Kelly today proclaimed December 12 to 18 as Bill of Rights Week, urging the people take occasion to study the bill of rights in the constitution and recognize that its princples are things for which "thousands of our young men are shdeding blood on battlefields" to protect.

NAZI ATTACKS HURLED BACK BY AMERICANS

BOTH SIDES GETTING SET FOR CRUCIAL CLASH IN ITALY

BY NOLAND NORGAARD

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 15 (AP)—American troops in the mountains near Mignano have hurled back three sharp counter-attacks by refreshed Nazi troops making determined stabs to wipe out the Allied threat to their "winter line" in Italy, Allied headquarters disclosed today.

Generally, there was little change around in Italy yesterday.

The Nazi assaults against Americans in the heights about Mignano were thrown in by a regiment of the 29th armored grenadier division, recalled into battle after resting behind the lines.

Eighth Army Gains

Three times the crack enemy unit charged the slopes, and three times it was thrown back by searing American rifle, machinegun and artillery fire that left many dead among the rocks and crags. Prisoners were taken.

Otherwise the rainy, cold day was marked only by artillery duels and patrol activity. Near the center of the front, Eighth army troops advanced northward of Rionero to ocuppy osme high ground. Both the Allies and Germans appeared to be bringing up reserves and generally getting set for a major battle.

(The German-controlled Paris radio reported that the American Fifth army launched a heavy new attack last night on German positions in front of Cassino, on the main road to Rome.

(A Swiss border dispatch today said Allied bombers were making a violent daylight attack on a northern Italian city, apparently the railroad center of Luino, 24 miles northwest of Como.)

Leros Positions Improved

Allied planes swept over Yugoslavia in continued support of patriot forces that are engaging six German divisions there, Spitfires shot up German crews rebuilding installations near Durazzo on the Albanian coast, and in sweeps along the Greek and Albanian coasts blew up a gasoline dump at Kavaji and stafed enemy troops and trucks at Bicak.

The Germans announced they had occupied the islands of Cherso, Veglia and Lussino off the Dalmatian coast near the Istrian peninsula after a "brief combat."

Improvement was reported in the Allied situation in the Dodecanese, word from Cairo saying that Allied troops fighting on Leros had bettered their positions. Long-range fighters from the Near-East were assisting in the fight against Nazi forces that landed on Leros last week.

GOVERNOR HAS FOOD TROUBLES

'Bribery And Blackmail' In Subsidy Setup Denounced

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP)— A New England governor who said milk production has declined critically appealed tonight for an emergency conference on food troubles, while a Texas leader of the livestock industry denounced food subsidies as "bribery and blackmail" smelling of dictatorship.

The appeal came from Governor Baldwin of Connecticult in a telegram to President Roosevelt, disclosed by Senator Danaher (R-Conn). The denunciation was by Joe Montague, Fort Worth lawyer.

Senator Aiken (R-Vt), responded to Danaher's disclosure on the Senate floor by declaring milk production was declining despite the federal dairy feed subsidy program inaugurated October 1. He said he did not believe any conference of subordinate officials would "do a bit of good because I think they are all operating under directives from the White House, and the President is the only one whose mind has to be changed."

Delegations from many states, including heads of state agriculture departments and spokesmen for producers' organizations, convrged on the capital for the Senate agriculture committee's hearings which were resumed tonight and will continue tomorrow.

Coupled with Montague's attack on the $800,000,000 food subsidy program was a prediction by another livestock spokesman, P. O. Wilson of Chicago, that a continuation of present price regulations will bring about an acute beef shortage next year.

TRIBUTES PAID TO RED ARROWS

Michigan Men Doing Fine Job In South Pacific War, Says Major

Lansing, Nov. 15 (AP)—The first field officer of Michigan's famed Red Arrow division to return from battle fronts reported Michigan men carved an outstanding record in the South Pacific war areas.

Major Garnet J. Burlingame, of Ann Arbor, in an address here, asserted the 27-day march of the 126th Infantry, Michigan National Guard, across the Owen Stanley mountains in New Guinea to reach the Japs at Buna Bay, may be one of the qutstanding marches of the war.

The 126th, minus Company "E" from Big Rapids, marched 125 miles across the 13,000 to 18,000 hogback ranges of the mountains to corner the Japs at Buna, he said. The Big Rapids contingent, he said, was flown from Australia to the battle scene because of the desperate situation.

Major Burlingame said the second battalian of the Red Arrow division, made up of troops from central and western Michigan, almost became the "lost battalion" of this war in the mountain trek. Existing throughout the trip on one car of "C" rations per day, the troops started out with only four days rations and were forced to depend on supplies dropped by plane. That battalion, he said, was in constant action for 42 days. He said the men lost an average of 30 pounds in weight and had to have a temperature of 104 degrees to be incapacitated.

Huge Expenditures In Whitehorse Oil Project Questioned

Washington, Nov. 15 (AP) — Chairman Truman (D-Mo) of the senate war investigating committee disclosed tonight that he will start public hearings next week into the expenditure of $130,000,000 of United States funds on an oil project at Whitehorse, Canada.

Senator Truman said Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Lieut. General Brehon Somervell, head of the army services of supply, would be among those questioned as to why the United States will not retain, after the war, the oil discovered as a result of its expenditures.

The project, known as the Canol oil project, includes wild-catting for oil, drilling of oil wells, laying a pipeline across "apparently unexplored parts of Canada, constructing a refinery and erecting numerous other facilities," Truman's formal statement asserted.

FIRST DIRECT BLOW SHAKES CITY OF SOFIA

BULGARIAN CAPITAL RAILWAY YARDS ARE WRECKED

BY EDWARD KENNEDY

Allied Headquarters, Algiers, Nov. 15. (AP)—Two waves of American medium bombers escorted by fighters smashed railway yards in the heart of Sofia, Bulgaria, yesterday in what an official allied announcement termed the "successful opening of the Balkan offensive."

Official reports of the assault on Sofia—the first direct blow at Bulgaria since that country declared war on the United States Dec. 13, 1941—described the bombing as "extremely accurate," with the Mitchells laying thousands of pounds of explosives squarely on locomotive repair shops, car assembly shops, a main line depot and acres of trackage.

Electricity Cut Off

(The Turkish Anatolian agency broadcast a dispatch from its Sofia correspondent which said the attack had been carried out by 130 planes which dropped approximately 200 bombs, some of which were fused for delayed action and were still exploding today.

(The dispatch added that the raid lasted an hour and 45 minutes and "some direct hits were scored," causing fairly high casualties. The broadcast, recorded by the federal communications commission, said some sections of Sofia were without electricity today as a result of the bombing.)

The Italy-based bombers and their Lightning escorts shot down nine of approximately 24 Nazi fighters that engaged them in a fierce battle over the target. The raid on the Bulgarian capital came as the Germans were reported using all available rail routes to rush men and supplies south for the fighting in the Dodecanese Islands.

Berlin Bitter

(The Germans, evidently stung by the midday attack, broadcast a threat of dire reprisals upon Britain for what they called a "naked and undisguised terror raid" on Sofia, in which many persons were reported killed.)

The blow at Sofia, entailing a round trip of some 700 miles, followed by only a few hours a "blockbuster" assault by RAF Wellington bombers from this theater on a railway bridge between the resort towns of Cannes and Monte Carlo on the French Riviera, and a damaging raid by RAF Bostons on port installations and a chemical works at Civitavecchia, northwest of Rome.

In all the allied day and night aid operations, including fighter sweeps over battle areas in Italy and Yugoslvia and fighter-bomber attacks on enemy camps and motor transport, only one plane was reported missing.

BOY WOUNDED BY RIFLE SHOT

.22 Bullet Lodges In Hip Of Philip Dubord, 15, Of Escanaba

Philip Dubord, 15, son of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Dubord of 1015 Third avenue south, was accidentally shot in the hip Sunday afternoon about 2 o'clock in Escanaba by a boy companion while they were returning to their homes from a hunting trip.

The .22 caliber rifle bullet entered his right hip and lodged in the flesh without striking the spine. Dubord was reported not to be in a serious condition and an operation for removal of the bullet was planned for today at St. Francis hospital where he was taken for the treatment after the accident.

The shot was fired by Howard Kohl, 15, of 1101 South third avenue, and the accident occurred at South third avenue and 16th street. Kohl and Edmund Dubord, 603 South 10th street, were questioned by police and signed statements giving their version of the accident.

Kohl told police that about 9:30 o'clock Sunday morning the group of boys, including himself, the two Dubord boys, Kenneth Lequia and Bill Breauzeau, left Escanaba and went for a hike west of the sewage disposal plant. Kohl carried a .22 caliber rifle and Phillip Dubord had a .20 guage shotgun. They returned to Escanaba about 2 o'clock. Lequia and Breauzeau left the other three, who continued walking.

"Phil Dubord said to me 'I think I'll let you have it' and pointed his .20 guage gun at me. I said 'I'll let you have it first.' We both were just fooling. I thought my gun was empty. I put my hand on the trigger guard and then the gun went off," Kohl's statement to the police read.

Kohl said he and Dubord had removed the shells from the guns as they reached the road in coming from the woods.

With The Deer Hunters . . .

Because of the early morning snow storm deer were not moving as much as the hunters would have liked but that did not prevent many from getting their bucks bright and early. Hunters driving swamps had good shooting and the "sitters" on the runways along the edges also did well.

Francis X. Beauchamp, Flat Rock, a top dock worker on the C. & N. W. docks here, brought in a nice 13 point buck that scaled about 170 pounds. Beauchamp, hunting about 3½ miles north of Watson in Marquette county killed the deer at 7:45 a. m. on Monday. His feat puts to an end many long years of kidding that he has taken from his fellow workers. For the past 20 years Beauchamp has been a deer hunter each fall but without success until Monday. After killing his deer he had to drag it out for two miles alone. Said Beauchamp, "Mr. Buck, I've been 20 years getting you and now that we are together we're not parting until you are safe."

Beauchamp's brother, Arthur Beauchamp, a Flat Rock farmer, also downed his buck Monday morning. It was an eight pointer and also weighed in the neighborhood of 170 pounds. He has been hunting north of Watson for the past four years.

No hunting accidents among the deer hunters were reported to conservation officers in this district Monday.

George Kieser, Ford River Road, shot an eight-point buck at Peterson Lake, eight miles north of Rapid River, about eight o'clock yesterday morning, just a few minutes after going into the woods.

Irene Gauthier, 1837 Third avenue north, bagged a 200 pound buck at eight o'clock yesterday morning on a farm near Rock. She is the first Escanaba woman to report filling her license on the opening day of the season. The animal dressed out at 170 pounds and the rack of horns had 11 points on one side and 12 on the other. This was her first deer hunting experience. She killed the deer with a 12 gauge shot gun.

Bloom Describes Life In The Army

Life in the United States army was described by PFC. Kryn Bloom of Camp Lee, Va., in an interesting and amusing talk at the meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Sherman hotel Monday noon.

Bloom told of the induction procedure at Camp Grant, Ill., and then continued with a humorous description of his basic training experiences at Camp Warren, Wyo., where he learned to dig fox holes, went on 24-mile hikes, washed thousands of dishes and did other K. P. duty. He then reviewed some of the incidents that occurred while he was attending the army supply school for his assignment into the quartermasters corps. Bloom said that the army was doing an efficent job of classifying inductees into the branches of service for which they are best suited, although he pointed out that some branches are now filled and opportunities for choice are consequently limited.

Wallace Cameron, superintendent of the Gladstone public schools, will be the speaker at the next meeting of the Kiwanis club.

BLAST SHAKES YORKTOWN AREA

Norfolk And Portsmouth Windows Broken; No Casualty Data

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 16. (Tuesday) (AP)—An explosion which the navy and Virginia state police said was at the Yorktown, Va., naval mine depot rocked the lower Virginia peninsula and Hampton Roads at 12:30 a. m. today.

Windows were broken in Norfolk and Portsmouth, which are at least 20 miles by air line from the depot on the York River. Citizens of Norfolk were shaken in their beds by the rumbling explosions which appeared to continue for eight to ten seconds.

The fifth naval district public relations office said a first report that the explosion had occurred at the Norfalk naval air station arose from a false fire alarm at the station a few minutes after the Yorktown blast.

Officers at the depot later confirmed that the explosion had been there, but declined to give newsmen any reports on casualtes, if any, and on property damage.

Twenty-eight men were killed or fatally injured and approximately 245 others injured in an explosion of ammunition at the naval air station here on Sept. 17. The station is located approximately ten miles from Norfolk and citizens said the force of the Yorktown blast was felt as plainly in this city as was the Sept. 17 explosion.

Persons on Norfolk streets said the flash of the explosion resembled a huge rocket.

The layout of the mine depot is a closely-guarded naval secret, but it is generally understood in Virginia that the depot itself has precautions against the contingency of explosion.

189 Spruce Hens Seen Near Sault

Sault Ste. Marie — While on patrol duty in the Whitefish Bay area, conservation officers observed 189 spruce hens in one day, the largest number of this species to be seen in the area for many years, according to state conservation department game men.

At one time spruce hens or spruce partridge were very plentiful in spruce and pine areas of the northern peninsula but became almost extinct about 30 years ago. Game officials think the birds may have become scarce because there was no cover for them after forest fires ravaged the area. Now, however, since much of the cover has grown back, and because spruce hens have had year long protection in recent years, the species is becoming plentiful again.

Spruce hens are easy prey for predators or poachers and have been known as "fool" hens because of their slowness in flushing when disturbed. Spruce grouse flesh is not considered a delicacy because of the bird's diet of spruce and pine buds, conservation authorities report.

They were not advised of the accident until they reached here. Forrest Bancroft, who was planning on hunting with Rintula also received word of the death.

Rintula was born in the Copper country and lived for a time at Mohawk. He came here about 11 years ago to work as a state trapper. He later went to Arizona to trap coyotes for the U. S. Biological Survey, then returned to Alger county and five years ago went to Detroit.

YULE LIGHTING IS DISCOURAGED

Voluntary community contribution to direct savings of city coal, manpower, transportation and materials by confining Christmas lighting to trees in private homes is asked by the war production board, Paul W. Romig, manager of the Green Bay district WPB office said yesterday.

The WPB request was made entirely in the interest of conserving the use of electricity and light bulbs, he said, and this in turn will save coal.

"Government and industry, with the wholehearted cooperation of utility companies, have combined in a nationwide conservation campaign to save critical coal," Romig said.

"The WPB is asking every community to refrain from its Christmas lighting custom as part of that campaign. Electric light bulbs are made of critical materials and strict conservation of them is necessary. Widespread consumption of bulbs during the Christmas season merely will mean a greater scarcity later on."

TEACHERS HOLD MEETING HERE

Report Of Activities Of MEA Reviewed By Local District

The Delta county district of the Michigan Education Association held a meeting at the Sherman hotel in Escanaba last Friday evening. Mrs. Rowena Benette of Cornell was elected vice president to fill a vacancy created by the departure of Keith Campbell, of Gladstone, who is in the armed forces.

Speakers at the meeting were: Bernard Tobin, Nahma, delegate to the representative assembly; C. P. Titus, member of the state board of directors; and C. C. Strickland, chairman of the retirement fund board.

Mr. Tobin reported on the meeting of the representative assembly of the M. E. A. which he attended last spring as a delegate of the Delta county district. He gave the results of the elections held at the meeting and explained that the out-state group had retained the balance of power on the board of directors.

Discussing the state retirement fund, Mr. Strickland said more money is still being paid out than is being received and the state has not been contributing its full share to the fund. He described a new retirement fund bill which will be acted upon by the legislature at its next session.

Mr. Titus gave a detailed account of the board of directors meeting which he attended recently in Lansing. He discussed the federal aid bill and said that it was mainly the opposition of southern senators which defeated the bill when it went before the senate. He emphasized the fact that there was an amendment to the bill which absolutely prevented the government from exercising any control over education.

George Weingartner, district president, released the following committee appointments for 1943 and 1944:

Legislation—C. P. Titus, Escanaba, chairman; C. C. Strickland, Gladstone; Paul Vardigan, Escanaba township; Leo Godin, Perpins; Ruth Wickstrom, Perkins.

HEAR STORY OF WAR IN EGYPT

Miss Elsie French Is Speaker At Rotary Meeting Monday

Egypt may have escaped much of the fury of actual war but the effect of the war on living conditions is found everywhere in that country, said Miss Elsie French, home in Escanaba on a year's leave from her duties as head of a United Presbyterian Missions girls' school in Cairo, in a talk to the Escanaba Rotary club yesterday noon at the Delta hotel.

Miss French has spent 34 years in Egypt, and returned to Escanaba to visit her mother, Mrs. Sarah French, 606 Ogden avenue. The trip home from Cairo to Escanaba took 13 weeks to the day, and was made on a Dutch freighter. She was the only woman on the ship.

The school for girls headed by Miss French is located in Cairo and she expects to go back there after the war. Although Cairo had a few attacks from the air, Alexandria was severely damaged.

"During the raids at Cairo the girls would go down in the basement and we would sing at the tops of our voices—so loud you could not hear the sound of the ack-ack, or the falling bombs," Miss French said.

Prices Double

But the basement was cold, and finally when the alarms came the teachers hesitated to send the girls there. "It was a choice between possible bombs and possible pneumonia," Miss French smiled.

The war's effect on prices brought hardships to most of the people of the country.

"Prices began to soar. There was no efficient price control such as you have here. Rice went up 50 per cent. Sugar was rationed—I don't know why because it is manufactured in Egypt—and the price doubled. The price of bread and soap went up and up, and there were three meatless days each week," Miss French explained.

The cost of other goods likewise sky-rocketed. Cloth the Egyptians used for clothing was almost unobtainable, and a cup and saucer of inferior quality cost 20 piasters —one dollar.

Enter By Windows

"Here in Escanaba I have a hard time to keep from buying all of the dishes in the dime stores, they look so good and are so reasonably priced," she said.

Transportation facilities, both rail and bus, were almost cut n half as the war went on. Coal for the trains had to be shipped from England. When the buses and street cars wore out they were taken off the run. There were no replacement parts.

"You may think traveling is difficult in America, but you don't know how really different it can be," Miss French said. "One way to get a seat in a train was to have someone boost you in through a window while it was being emptied through a door. Sometimes you had to get out through the windows at your station, for with the pushing and shoving you might not be able to get off, and would be carried on when the train started."

OCTOBER BANK DEBITS MOUNT

In the month of October, business volume in Escanaba as measured by bank debits was 12 per cent above the level attained in October, 1942, while the total debits for this year to date indicate a 25 per cent increase when compared with the same ten months of 1942.

These bank debits figures are released each month by the Federal Reserve Bank of Minneapolis and represent the volume of checks drawn by depositors against their bank accounts to pay for goods, services, debts, etc. They are considered a good indicator of general business trends in a given locality and reflect cash income received by farmers and government spending to cover payrolls and purchase war materials in addition to general business volume.

In Upper Michigan debits volume in October increased 13 per cent over October, 1942, while an 18 per cent increase was shown when the first ten months of 1943 and 1942 are compared.

Figures from 130 cities throughout the Ninth Federal Reserve District indicate that in this area business volume in October, 1943, was 20 per cent above October, 1942, and that the January-October total was 25 per cent over the same 1942 period.

HEALTH QUIZ

	YES	NO
Do you have poor digestion?	☐	☐
Do you feel headachy after eating?	☐	☐
Do you get sour or upset easily?	☐	☐
Do you feel tired—listless?	☐	☐

Now everyone knows that to get the good out of the food you eat—you must digest it properly. But what most people don't know is that Nature must produce about two pints of the digestive juice—liver bile—each day to help digest your food. If Nature fails—your food may remain undigested—lie sour and heavy in your digestive tract.

Thus, it is simple to see that one way to aid digestion is to increase the flow of liver bile. Now, Carter's Little Liver Pills start to increase this flow quickly for thousands—often in as little as thirty minutes. When bile flow increases, your digestion may improve. And, soon you're on the road to feeling better—which is what you're after.

Don't depend on artificial aids to counteract indigestion—when Carter's aid digestion after Nature's own order, when taken as directed. Get Carter's Little Liver Pills today—at any drugstore—only 25¢. You will be glad you did.

Helpful Tricks in Saving Used Fats

TAKE ANY TIN CAN and tie cheese-cloth loosely over top. Or set an old strainer on top, and leave it there. Add every drop of kitchen fats you can no longer use for cooking. Or just throw fats into can unstrained, and when can is full, strain the whole lot at once into another can.

PLEASE HELP! Used fats no matter how black are needed desperately for ammunition and for medicines. Save them in a tin can, not glass. Any kind of can will do. Rush them to your meat dealer. Start doing it today, won't you?

Hard Fighting Ahead

RUSSIAN victories and continued retreat by the Nazis on their western front are encouraging news to the people of the United Nations, but there are signs that Germany will endeavor to redeem herself with a full-scale counteroffensive in Italy. All this portends hard fighting for the American Fifth and the British Eighth armies, with prospects of much increased casualties.

Germany is now engaged in the fifth year of conflict, and there are reports that war fatigue is having noticeable effects upon the morale of the civilians and the men of the armed forces. In World War I, the army collapsed from war fatigue in the fourth year. In that war, too, the German homeland was unscarred by battle, but now the devastating effects of Allied air power are being felt throughout the Reich. The civilians are getting a bitter taste of war, and they realize that it is not all victory and glory for a greater Germany.

The people back home in Germany must be worrying over whether their sons will be obliged to face the rigors of another Russian winter. No longer are the reverses suffered by the Nazis concealed from them for Goebbels propaganda has changed its tune of successive victories to one of defeats by the Bolshevist hordes. This new line of propaganda has a two-fold purpose: firstly, to induce the German people to make added sacrifices in a last-ditch battle against their enemies; and secondly, to arouse fears of Russia's growing power among the democratic nations.

But Hitler realizes fully well that some kind of a military victory is needed to bolster sagging German morale. The people know how the arrival of American troops in France in 1918 turned the tide of victory to the Allies at a time when Germany had only to defeat a groggy British and French army. Now, the Americans are being poured into Italy, and the Nazis are reported to be concentrating large forces in that sector in an effort to make a good showing.

More Scrap Needed

REPORTS from various sections of the country disclose that the renewed drive to collect scrap iron and steel is not bringing the expected results.

The public usually responds to a patriotic cause with much vigor the first time, but it has been noted that its enthusiasm drops when the efforts are repeated. It is the American habit to go for fads.

Government officials, however, say that the scrap situation is serious. The Bureau of Mines reports about 6,778,000 gross tons of scrap were in the hands of consumers and suppliers Sept. 1. This might be a comfortable backlog under normal conditions, but the margin of safety it now provides is considered narrower than that of anp other war-strategic raw material.

To keep up their record production of 7,500,000 tons of steel monthly, mills are consuming each month about 4,600,000 tons of scrap. Consumption in the last half of 1943 will exceed that of any previous six-month period. More steel and scrap will be shot at the enemy in the next 90 days than has been fired during the first 23 months of this war.

The collection of scrap is one of the little but very important jobs that the folks on the home front can do to hasten the return of the boys from the fighting fronts.

Shoe On Other Foot

THE trouble in Lebanon is another example of the need for a consistent policy on the part of the United Nations in their dealings with the people of colonial possessions. It means that if the Four Freedoms charter is ever going to be more than high sounding words the so-called democratic nations must extend the freedoms and privileges of a democracy to all peoples.

Lebanon and Syria was mandated to France by the League of Nations after the first World War, and Gen. Georges Catroux pledged their independence in 1941 when Free French and British troops took the territory from the Nazi-puppet Vichy government. British supported Catroux's pledge.

But when Lebanon's legislative assembly voted recently to set up an independent republic, officials of the French Committee of National Liberation arrested some of the political leaders. It's a case of wanting freedom for the people of France but not for those who live in Lebanon.

And Britain is deeply concerned over the troubles in Lebanon, and threatens to intervene for it fears that French mishandling of the situation might jeopardize adjacent British-controlled territory of strategic military importance.

Now, we come to India. Starvation grips large portions of India, largely due to lack of foresight on the part of British colonial administrators. The people of India also have been clamoring for independence for decades, but they do not get it and their leaders are clamped in jail. Unrest in India threatens the security of American forces, stationed in India and preparing to wage an offensive against the Japs. So, we in America are deeply interested in how Britain manages or mismanages her Indian problem.

The nub of the problem is that the world has advanced to a point where we cannot give democracy to only a select few, but we must ration it out to all.

It's Still A Mess

OUR overseas political warfare does not seem to keep apace with our military advances, judging from the difficulties that have accompanied our efforts to establish a workable form of civil administration in Italy.

We fought Marshal Badoglio's forces in North Africa and Sicily, but when Mussolini was deposed we quickly accepted the leader of his military forces as one of our new allies. He is the same Marshal Badoglio who led Mussolini's ruthless adventure into Ethiopia and slaughtered the defenseless people of that backward country.

Accepting Marshal Bagdolio, we also found we had King Victor Emmanuel on our hands. He is the same little king who was willing to play ball with Il Duce and his Fascists as long as the royal family continued to enjoy its possessions and other favors from the government.

But the anti-Fascist, pro-democracy elements of Italy do not want anything to do with King Emmanuel and his royal nincompoops. Count Sforza, lifelong anti-Fascist who spent years of exile in the United States, is one of the leaders, who refuse to join any government under a king tainted with Fascism.

Our troubles stem from the outworn idea still harbored by some of our leaders that you can still do business with Fascists in countries liberated from the Axis yoke and that the freed people will like it. They won't. Having suffered the evils of Fascism, they want genuine democracy now or are willing to fight on until they win it for themselves. Someday, we also will have to cut out a cancerous Fascist growth in Spain, for the freedom-loving Spanish people do not want Franco.

SAVING ITALY—FOR WHOM?
(Christian Science Monitor)

Memories of two decades of rule by a self-appointed dictator, under which the King became a small minus sign, give current reports on Italian political maneuvers an unreal and even a dubious cast. General Badoglio has been trying to form a Government on the basis of continued loyalty to King Victor Emmanuel. But the men he needs have refused to enter a Cabinet on those terms. Count Sforza and Benedetto Croce have demanded abdication of the King. General Badoglio is now reported as willing to proceed from this premise.

The argument seems to have won the day that any government that hopes to command the energetic support of the Italian people in the fight against the Nazis will itself have to break dramatically with Italy's Fascist past. The King is felt to be too closely identified with the Mussolini regime, and it is feared that a government loyal to the King would be suspect. Even Crown Prince Humbert is beyond usefulness, and so it is proposed to place the six-year-old Prince of Naples on the throne and set up a regency under Badoglio.

Now all this folderol in the name of legitimacy may be very satisfying to those who already have made up their minds that the democratic form of government to be chosen by the people of Italy after the war must include the House of Savoy. But it is not so assuring to those who want to see the Italian people make a completely untrammelled choice.

If the purpose of setting up an Italian Government at this time is to provide unity for the fight against the Germans, why cannot a provisional government without prejudicial reference to any particular form of government be established? Why would not such a government provide a broader base for unity than can possibly be offered by a set-up that ignores the views of a great mass of Italian patriots who hope for a republic?

To by-pass Crown Prince Humbert in favor of the six-year-old Prince of Naples, it is already necessary for General Badoglio to modify constitutional requirements. Where so much improvisation is inevitable, a little more is hardly to be feared. The history of Italy during the past twenty years is not such as to suggest that the country cannot be unified except through loyalty to the House of Savoy, or that the monarchy can contribute much to the dynamics of freedom and national respect that must now infuse the Italian effort for national rebirth.

WORDS TO WATCH

TEMPERAMENT is usually telescoped to "TEM-puh-m'nt" or "TEM-puh-m'nt." Properly pronounced, the word has four distinct syllables, thus: TEM-per-uh-ment.

Likewise, CONSIDERABLE is given this smothering: "k'n-SID-uh-b'l." But all the syllables should be pronounced: kun-SID-er-uh-b'l.

Also, watch physically, musically, frantically, and the other words that end in -cally, which should not be pronounced "klee," as "FIZZ-uh-klee," etc. Say: FIZZ-i-kuh-lee, MEW-zi-huk-lee, FRAN-ti-kuh-lee.

It is surprising how many persons of good education pronounce POEM as "pome." Indeed, a broadcaster who recites poetry on one of the networks refers constantly to "pomes." Of course, good usage and the dictionaries sanction no other pronunciation than: POE-em.

A common error is saying "fitharmy" for Fifth Army. The second "f" in "fifth" should not be omitted. Similar errors are "smiss" for "Smiths," "munts" for "months" and "berss" for "berths."

ACUMEN is not "AK-you-mn." Be sure to place the accent on the second syllable, as: un-KEW-men.

Just out, by popular demand, my new pamphlet: Rules for Pronouncing Italian; simple, authoritative, and just the thing for broadcasters, teachers, public speakers, and that soldier of yours, bless him. ROTTERDAM puzzles many persons. "Why the 'dam'?" they ask. Dam is the Dutch word for "dam or dyke." Rotterdam means "the dam of the river Rotte." Amsterdam is "dyke or dam of the Amstel."

Fair Enough

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A recent issue of the Honolulu Advertiser contained a small and, apparently, for Honolulu, commonplace, news item concerning civilian absenteeism which should interest all of us. It said that Capt. John F. Wickhem, Provost Judge, had made it "perfectly plain to defendants charged with absenteeism yesterday in his court that he would not be lenient on offenders."

Pegler

The Advertiser then named 13 men who had been sent to jail for terms of from 20 days to two months for this offense, eight of whom were fined from $100 to $150 in addition. Five got straight sentences of two months without fines. One got two months and $150. In the other cases, the fines were suspended but the men were sent to jail, six of them for 30 days and one for 20 days.

The story does not say by what authority a military officer could impose these penalties for refusal to work but presumably that authority has been established and recognized, possibly because Honolulu, in the light of Dec. 7, 1941, has been identified as a combat area. Similar action has been taken by American military authorities in other war zones in Africa and the South Pacific against civilian sailors for shirking duty and other misconduct.

—NOTED FOR HIS TENACITY—

The commanding officer in Honolulu is Maj. Gen. R. C. Richardson, the very model of the West Point soldier, who served a tour as commandant of cadets at the military academy and who is known in the army as Nellie Richardson for the reason, I believe, that he is so very precise, proper and strict. He is noted for his tenacity as well, which expressed itself not long ago in a conflict between the military authorities which he represented and upheld and the civil authority represented by a federal judge. I lost track of the controversy but believe the settlement was postponed, like the trials of the general's predecessor and of Admiral Kimmel, until a less crowded hour. I have an impression, however, that General Richardson did not lose the contest.

Incidentally, for any light that it may throw on the present case, six of the 13 defendant absentees bore Japanese names and some of the others, at a guess, would be Filipinos. That may be insignificant, however, because there is a large element of citizens and other residents of Japanese blood and Filipinos.

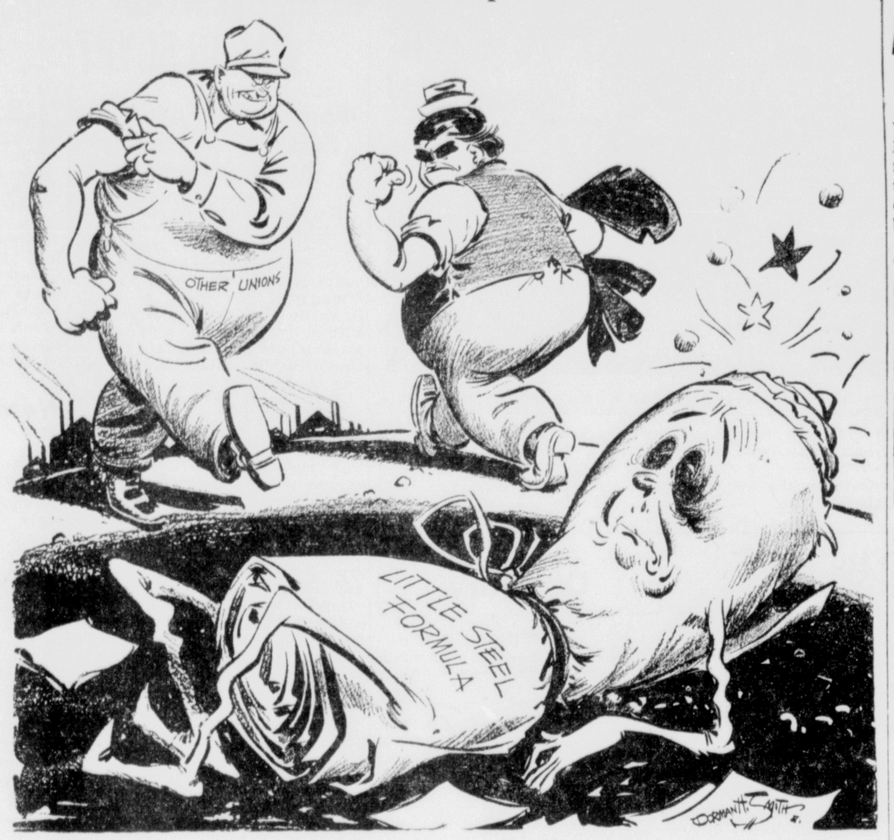
The man who sent the item described himself as an officer of the regular navy who was present during the attack on Pearl Harbor and who has not been home to the mainland since the war began. He wrote approvingly of the sentences and indicated a conviction that war workers at home who go out on strike are no better than these 13. In this he only voiced an opinion which has been expressed in other letters from men of the navy, the army and the marine corps in combat areas since John Lewis struck the coal mines last spring. They may not know the law, the issues, or the fine points of unionism but they are living under military compulsion themselves and in constant danger and they are, to understate their feelings, impatient.

—HOW FASCISM GOT START—

It would be absurd to suggest at the present stage of the game that similar proceedings could take place against strikers in war production jobs on the mainland if only for the reason that strikes are so commonplace and strikers so many. Nevertheless, meanwhile, an indirect approach to compulsion has been made at home under the terms of various job-freezing orders and through arbitrary lists of nondeferable occupations. This procedure is no more legal than the method used in Honolulu but it is less startling because it has been indirect. In many cases, too, it has had the incidental effect of forcing ostensibly free men to pay tribute to unions for permission to work at jobs designated by their government, often as the alternative to military service. Union leaders, it may have been observed, have approved this compulsion for this reason.

Possibly the Honolulu cases approximate Fascism but it is worth remembering that Fascism in Italy was the counter-revolution against an aggravated condition some elements of which have already made their appearance in the United States in the temporary absence and political voicelessness of millions of the most patriotic and vigorous citizens of the republic.

Now Comes the 'Coup de Grace'



Good Morning!

By The Bugler

HAVEN OF TREES—The longer we live in this Upper Peninsula the more we are convinced nature never intended that it should be a cut-over land, treeless, barren and unfriendly.

Dunathan

This observation was born of a recent conversation with J. T. Sharpensteen, Delta county road engineer, who presented some interesting figures concerning the varying costs of snow removal costs in the county over an eight-year period, prepared by the county road commission.

Briefly, the study shows that county roads protected by trees, mostly second growth and brush, costs up to half as much less to keep open during the winter months as do the wide-open roads. These protected roads seldom drift shut. The wind just doesn't get a chance to form drifts and pack the snow down solidly.

In the open country, however, it is another story. There the winter winds roar, carrying the snow before them, piling it high, fillng in the roadway which may have been cleared only a few hours before.

What this means in increased snow removal cost is shown in the following figures, taken from the snow removal cost study:

One county road which has not protective tree cover, cost $72.40 per mile average over the eight years to keep cleared.

Another road of comparable length, which has 95 per cent protection by trees, costs only $32.65 per mile to keep open during the past eight winters.

A third road, with 64 per cent protection, cost $52.40 per mile for snow removal.

BASIC RESOURCE—Many people have the unfortunate opinion that because the Upper Peninsula pine lands have been denuded of their mighty trees, there is nothing left to save.

The public's stake in the remaining merchantable timber is great. Right now under the stress of wartime we may be prone to overlook the necessity for wise forest conservation. We think only of the immediate necessity—the same mistake the "lumber barons" made a half century ago. The market boomed then, the market is booming now. Unless the lessons we have learned from the past continue to be applied now, valuable small growth which should become the bank roll of the future will be lost.

While this is not true on the forest lands owned by the federal and state governments, where cutting is carefully watched, it does apply on the privately owned lands, where every stick of timber can be cut, the undergrowth damaged, without thought of the future.

The farmer who owns a woodlot is being encouraged to cut off merchantable timber to meet the demand market. Jobbers are busier now that they have been in many years. The cut and slash era is at hand again. Owners of these lands should demand that operators cut selectively, leaving a sufficient stand of timber to bring forth a future crop.

The Upper Peninsula's forests are a basic resource. With care they can return greater profits than were realized in the old razzle-dazzle pine days. Mines may be depleted of their valuable ore, never to be restored. Our forest lands with careful cutting will continue to produce through all the centuries to come.

* * *

WHAT WE LOSE—The high cost of snow removal on unprotected roads illustrates the stake the public has in forest conservation, whether it be on public or private lands.

It is foolish economy to denude the county of its protective timber and then pay higher taxes (weight and gas tax in this case) to keep the roads open. In the public interest it might be well to encourage owners of timber lands to leave protective strips along the roads, and to carry out a tree planting program along exposed sections of county roads.

This has been done to a degree by the state highway department and some Michigan counties. In fact, the state highway department got its idea for roadside protective planting from Iron county, where such plantings were started nearly 20 years ago. "Firsts" really are unimportant. What is important is that roadside planting in Delta county should be seriously considered as a post-war work project.

The taxpayer loses money every time a road is exposed to the sweep of winter wind. Snow fencing is only partly effective and the cost of maintaining snow fence—putting it up in the fall, taking it down in the spring time—runs into money. Better a permanent planting of trees to screen our highways, both from the standpoint of cost and the appearance of our roads.

* * *

TO THE FUTURE—In looking ahead to the next 50 years, the Upper Peninsula should have more merchantable timber than it has today. And it should have almost complete protection of its highways by forest cover. This would end the necessity for snow removal grants from the state, let us say, and bring a step nearer the local control of local functions of government. However, if local government is unable to foresee the necessity for such a simple thing as planting trees along its roadsides to reduce snow plowing costs, we can expect more state grants—and more strings attached to local government.

Hollywood

By Erskine Johnson

Vera Zorina, in a filmy white dress, was doing what we thought was a new kind of shimmy dance. She was standing in front of the camera shaking all over and not moving her feet. Where was Will Hays, we wondered, when the lights went on?

It was our mistake.

Zorina said it wasn't a new kind of shimmy dance. She was just cold and she was shaking all over, she said, to keep her blood in circulation before dance partner George Raft appeared to take her in his arms.

After a couple of minutes on the set our teeth started to chatter, too. It was one of those nippy California fall mornings, and they couldn't heat the stage because of its size.

Even George Raft was wearing an overcoat, over a black and white gaucho costume, when he came out of his dressing room. Zorina's shaking startled him, too, and always the gentleman, he handed her his overcoat. Both said a couple of hot water bottles would be welcome, indeed.

The cold set, though, was just a minor annoyance. Director Eddie Sutherland and his crew were having troubles filming this big Raft-Zorina Rumba-Samba dance sequence for the film, "Three Cheers For the Boys." Big troubles.

* * *

They were filming the dance on an all black set. Black floor, black well drapes and black ceiling. Very effective, too, with Zorina in a white dress and Raft in a black and white gaucho costume.

But what a headache, Director Sutherland said, when the drapes in the background were pulled aside and they continued the dance in front of a panel of mirrors.

The camera, he said, had to peek through a hole in a black curtain. Otherwise you would see the camera on the screen. And when Raft and Zorina danced, the camera couldn't catch all of their reflection on the black shiny floor. The camera cut off their heads. So they strapped a two-foot square section of the floor right onto the camera, just beneath the lens. When the camera moved, the floor moved, too, eliminating the headless reflections.

For another trick effect, the camera comes down a tunnel and spirals to Zorina. It would all look mighty good on the screen, Sutherland said, but it was the biggest celluloid headache he'd had in years.

The dance, which will last two minutes on the screen, will require almost a week to film. They're shooting it step by step, based on blueprints worked out in advance by Veloz and Yolanda. Took them a week to work out the dance.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Washington—The coast-to-coast stop-Willkie tour of handsome, urbane John Hamilton seems to be getting nowhere fast. Reports from the West Coast are that everyone is glad to see the popular ex-GOP National Committee Chairman, but that he offers nothing for something.

In Seattle last week, for instance, he told Republican friends that he thought Tom Dewey would be nominated, but that Roosevelt would beat him. Reaction of Hamilton's listeners was negative. They felt he radiated, without intending to do so, a defeatist attitude.

Pearson

In Seattle, Hamilton was the guest of live-wire young Republican Fred Baker. Though Baker is for Willkie, he took pains to see that Hamilton talked to all groups of Republicans—Deweyites, Brickerites, AFL leaders, women's organizations, county leaders, and state legislators.

Hamilton proposed as proper GOP timber one of the following four: Gen. MacArthur, Gov. Warren of California, Gov. Saltonstall of Mass., Gov. Baldwin of Conn. He described Bricker as a great disappointment.

John described himself as representing a group of people in big states with heavy electoral votes who were dead set against Willkie and wanted to see what other candidates sat well with the country. He shied away from giving details as to who were in the group of prominent Republicans he represented, though he did not deny being backed by Pennsylvania's Oil Man Pew. This, of course, was taken for granted.

—DORIS DUKE'S DOGS—

New Deal Glamour Girl Evie Robert, champion of underprivileged dogs, was busy some time ago organizing a Tail-Wagger's Club to help rescue stray curs.

She conceived the idea of enlisting blue blood dogs as charter members, and approached Doris Duke Cromwell, richest woman in the world, now suing her husband for divorce.

Doris had twelve dogs, and Evie proposed that if they were all enrolled in the Tail-Wagger's Club it would make the pet club fashionable, and lesser lights would follow suit. Doris consented.

"All right," concluded Evie, "that makes your twelve dogs members and you owe me one dollar a piece membership dues, a total of twelve dollars."

"What!" exclaimed the richest woman in the world. "You didn't tell me about that. I'll have to think it over more carefully. Send me some literature."

—WHISKEY SPECULATION—

There has been a mysterious stock market rise in American Distilling Co. stock—so sudden and mysterious that the Securities and Exchange Commission is investigating. The stock jumped from a low of 15 to a high of 72.

Here is the inside story of this meteoric zoom. It has been rumored that American Distilling would go out of business. Ordinarily, this would cause the stock to drop, not rise.

But with whiskey stocks low throughout the country, people have been buying into American Distilling Co. with the idea that if the company should be liquidated they would get a distribution of the company's whiskey.

American Distilling has about one barrel for each stockholder, so Wall Street has been eagerly buying stock. What they don't know is that if the company were liquidated all they would get is warehouse receipts. To "roll out the barrel" is against federal law.

—CONGRESS DOWN ON DOCTORS—

Despite the dangerous shortage of doctors and dentists, the House Appropriations Committee slashed a $1,000,000 request by the U. S. Public Health Service from the Supplemental Defense Bill.

However, what most observers missed was the fact that this same committee less than six months ago disapproved a $175,000 request for medical relief on the ground that the request should have been bigger!

The $1,000,000 fund, was to enable the relocation of 600 doctors and dentists in areas where they are desperately needed, and was vetoed despite warnings by War Manpower's Dr. Frank H. Lahey, the American Medical Association, the American Dental Association, and the War nad Navy Departments that in some areas there was only one physician to every 3,000 civilians.

But the committee butchered the $1,000,000 just the same.

In contrast, here is how the same committee ruled last May on a $175,000 request for relocating 70 physicians:

"The committee is well aware that the shortage of physicians in many sections of the country is acute, but considers that any program which would provide for the services of only 70 physicians is so ineffective as to be unjustifiable.

"The committee is willing to give consideration to any type of program which the Public Health Service may suggest to meet the need in a more adequate manner."

—MERRY-GO-ROUND—

There is so much up-and-down-hill fighting in Italy that the Fifth Army looks with envy on the Italian burro. Gen. Clark has wired the War Department, "Please send mules" . . . In 1935, before Mussolini invaded Ethiopia, he practically denuded Missouri, Arkansas, and Texas of mules. The Italian government bought about 300,000 . . . Inside reason for withdrawal of Dominican Ambassador J. M. Troncoso from Washington is that Dominican dictator Trujillo is displeased at not being invited to visit the White House. Most other Latin Presidents have been invited, but FDR sticks to Sumner Welles' ban against Trujillo.

Holiday Turkey For Thanksgiving To Be Available

By LOUISE BENNETT WEAVER
AP Food Editor

A lot of folks on the home front will have turkey for Thanksgiving, after all. Uncle Sam's orders for a supply of the grand old birds for his boys in the service have been filled, and the quota left over for civilians is larger than was expected.

Stuffing does a grand job of stretching poultry flavor. Allow about a cup of stuffing for each pound of dressed weight of your turkey. About three-fourths pound of fowl should be allowed for each serving.

To vary the flavor of the stuffing put in a cup of small oysters, toasted diced chestnuts or mushrooms. Some of the family may like raisins, prunes or walnuts added to the stuffing. Go slow, however, on too drastic stuffing variations, as the old standbys are legion in many households. If short on butter, enriched margarine gives a good flavor and adds moisture. Thyme, sweet basil and sage, too, help out the flavor of a pungent stuffing.

Turkey 'N' Trimmings
Hot Tomato Juice
Lemon Quarters
Roast Turkey Oyster Stuffing
Mashed Sweet Potatoes
Giblet Gravy
Buttered Broccoli or Kale
Cider Sherbet
Crisp Celery
Steamed Cranberry Pudding
Orange Sauce
Coffee

Wash the bird thoroughly. Wipe dry inside and outside and sprinkle inside with a little salt. Fill lightly with the stuffing. Truss, holding legs and wings in place with metal skewers or cords. Be careful not to cross cords across the breast as they will leave marks. When the bird is ready for the oven, rub all over with shortening. Do not sprinkle with salt until about half done.

Roast the breast side down, uncovered in shallow pan, in a moderately slow over (300) for three hours for a 10 pound bird. Add about 30 minutes extra roasting time for each pound after ten pounds. Baste every 30 minutes and turn the fowl over, using two large spoons. Never pierce the turkey when turning it. Baste with one-third cup shortening melted in one-half cup hot water.

If the fowl browns before it is tender, cover with a cloth rinsed out of hot water and baste right through the cloth.

Cranberry sauce or jelly made the day before always goes with a festive meal. If you have plenty of apples on hand, boil and chill some. They make appetizing salads when stuffed with raisins or dates, mixed with diced celery, nuts and salad dressing.

Slices of avocados and tomatoes "dressed" with a tart French dressing and arranged on crisp lettuce or cress make an excellent salad. Serve with plain crisp crackers or some toast strips spread lightly with snappy cheese.

Here is a Victory Pumpkin Pie recipe. Make it the day before. Mix together 1½ cups cooked, strained pumpkin, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon each cloves, mace and ginger, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ cup sugar, ¼ cup honey, 8 eggs, beaten, 1 cup milk and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into unbaked crust and make 10 minutes in moderately hot oven (400). Lower to moderately slow (325) and bake 40 minutes. This is enough filling for one pie.

If your family prefers a steamed pudding try this carrot one: Mix together 1-3 cup chopped suet, ½ cup dark brown sugar, 2 tablespoons molasses, 1 cup grated raw carrots, 2-3 cup chopped raisins or prunes or dates, 2-3 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon nutmeg, ½ teaspoon vanilla, 1 teaspoon each grated lemon and orange rinds, 1 egg, 1 tablespoon orange juice, 1½ cups flour, ½ teaspoon sola, 1 teaspoon baking powder and 1-3 cup nuts (optional). Steam in covered mold 1½ hours. Serve hot with fruit or hard sauce.

The Camera Reporter

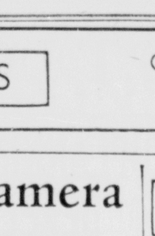
The question: "What is your most interesting hunting experience?"

The answers:

John Gannon, 400 Stephenson avenue: "My most interesting experience occurred in the camp, and not in the woods. The fellows were sitting around playing poker. I got up from the game and spied a pinochle deck with a design very similar to the conventional deck that we were using. I substituted the pinochle deck when it was my turn to deal, but didn't tell the boys about it. Boy, you should have seen the look of anticipation on every player's face when they picked up their fistful of face cards. It wasn't until the third hand when somebody got five aces that they tumbled to the trick. It was a scream."

J. Gannon

Francis McGovern, 309 South Eleventh street: "I got my biggest thrill three years ago while hunting near Rapid River with my father. A big buck jumped into a clearing about 100 yards from me. I fired three shots at him but missed, but just when I thought I had lost him, I plunked him with the fourth shot and dropped him in his tracks. The bullet broke his back. He weighed 180 pounds and is the biggest deer I have ever killed."



F. McGovern

M. A. Trams, 1125 Stephenson avenue: "Well, I was lost in the woods once and had to spend the night out. I was trailing a wounded deer when darkness overcame. I had matches, though, so I built a fire and stayed put until morning. I admit I was somewhat worried at first, but finally fell asleep. At daybreak I headed in a straight direction until I walked out to a road. I got back to my camp to learn that the other members of the party had called for a searching party."

M. A. Trams

Wm. Weycker, 1609 South 14th street: "I guess truth is stranger than fiction because when you tell people about actual hunting experiences they think you're spreading it pretty thick. Anyway, I shot a deer back of Stager Lake 35 years ago and plunked him so thoroughly through the heart that the heart was all smashed to pieces. Yet that deer ran a quarter of a mile before he died. He fell twice and got up both times. I had quite a search for him."

Wm. Weycker

Wm. Miron, sheriff, Delta county jail: "I've been hunting deer ever since I was old enough to carry a gun and I've had a lot of interesting experiences. Last year was the first season that I failed to get my deer and maybe that's why it was my most interesting experience. My eyes were bothering me and was unable to catch the groove in the rear sight of my rifle. I saw five bucks and shot at all of them, but I never got one. At one place where I was standing I watched 32 deer cross the highway not far from me but every one was a doe or a fawn. My eyesight is OK now and I'll bet I fill my license this time."

Wm. Miron

On announcing a guest, the "butler" of ancient Rome immediately served him a goblet of milk as a sign of welcome.

On Being A Real Person

By Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick

Sound Physical Health Is Not Essential to Being a Real Person

Three factors enter into the building of personality: heredity, environment, and personal response. The importance of the first two we take for granted; they rigorously limit the control of the individual over his own life.

As Oscar Ameringer puts it: "Except that I inherited certain characteristics from an unknown number of unknown ancestors, was deeply influenced by persons most of whom were dead before I was born, and shaped by circumstances over which I had no control, I am a self made man." Life consists not simply in what heredity and environment do to us, but in what we make out of what they do to us.

One of the clearest illustrations of this fact is found in the very place where its discovery might seem most difficult. At no point do heredity and environment impinge upon us so intimately as in our own physical organisms. Some ills of the body, such as certain glandular diseases, can utterly disrupt the person. We are psycho-physical organisms, and as a building site profoundly influences the size and kind of house that can be built upon it, so the body limits or expands the possibilities of the personality associated with it. Yet even in this most interior impact of inheritance and circumstance on personal life an astonishing prevalence of disorganized and sprawling personalities with sound bodies, and consummate personalities with handicapped bodies, confronts the observer.

Man's inner self is rooted in the body. To be sure, the personal faculties—mind, memory, hope, affection, purpose—belong in a realm unseeable, intangible, nonmetric. A man sees not his friend but only the outward integument, the physical mask that at once conceals and reveals him. A man never sees himself; no mirror or fluoroscope can make visible that mysterious center of psychic activity which is the real person. Yet this inner self, invisible though it is, is so interlaced with, dependent on, and influenced by, the body, that no discrimmination is fine enough to tell where the one ends and the other begins.

The roster of the world's real persons is astonishingly inconsiderate of sound physical health. Charles Darwin, as he himself said, "almost continually unwell"; Robert Louis Stevenson, with his tuberculosis; Helen Keller, blind and deaf; Stanton Kirkham, bedridden for 25 years, yet saying: "As the most barren regions of the earth yield something to the botnist and the geologist, the most desolate aspects of life are not wholly without interest to the philosopher."

Innumerable people, counting ill health no reprieve from the primary demand to be real persons, find abiding satisfaction and achieve admirable personal life despite calamitous physical conditions.

Things act under the influence of stimuli; they may even be said to react to stimuli, but persons can respond. Reaction is mechanical, while response is personal, and the endeavors of materialists to reduce the latter to the former are unconvincing because in actual experience the two are so radically different. Billiard balls react; persons can do more. A sneeze is a reaction, but the triumphant answers which some personalities make to life's difficult situations cannot be conveningly subsumed under such a category. Socrates' reply to his judges was not a sneeze, but a response.

Whatever may be the evolutionary relationship between bodily reaction and personal response, they are now in practical experience so widely diverse that to identify them is to obscure one of the most significant contrasts in human life. Sir Walter Scott and Lord Byron both were lame, but they took it differently. Sir Walter lived a radiant life, while a friend said of Lord Byron: "He brooded over that blemish as sensitive minds will brood until they magnify a wart into a wen. His lameness certainly helped to make him skeptical, cynical, and savage." If this capacity to confront life with a distinctive personal rejoinder is thus evident even in that most intimate realm where heredity and environment impinge upon us in our physical organisms, we may certainly expect to find it everywhere else.

By ERNIE PYLE

Dana, Ind.—Mrs. Howard Goforth, one of our farm neighbors down the road, is recovering from an impact with a corncrib.

The other day she and Howard drove over to Nellie Hendricks' after something.

Pyle

Howard doesn't drive. Mrs. Goforth has been doing all the driving for 20 years, and never had an accident.

But this certain day she swung around in the Hendricks' barnlot, and then something unexplainable happened, and she couldn't get the car stopped, and rammed head-on into the corncrib.

It smashed the front end of the car, shattered the windshield, broke the steering wheel into three pieces against Mrs. Goforth's chest, and almost cut one of Howard's fingers off.

And incidentally, it moved the big corncrib nine inches off its concrete foundation.

Farmers do have the funniest auto accidents. Things like barns and corncribs and wagons are always getting in the way. And if nothing's in the way, they have accidents anyhow.

I remember years ago when Bill Satterlee was trying to switch from a Model-T to a brand new gearshift Ford. He took it out in a 20-acre open pasture with not a tree nor a bush in it, and without over hitting a thing he wrecked that new Ford so badly they couldn't even trade it in. It seems he just kept turning it over and over.

This country drivin' ain't safe.

They're telling a joke around Dana in which my name figures.

Last spring The Indianapolis Times had a big state-wide collection going on, to raise money to send cigarets to our troops throughout the world. The fund was promoted in my name, since I was overseas writing about the boys.

Newsdealers and drugstores all over the state put up collection boxes so people could donate to the fund. In the drugstore at Dana they had a mason jar on the glass counter, with a penciled pasteboard sign saying "Ernie Pyle Cigaret Fund."

One day a woman came in, looked at it in astonishment for a long time, and finally said to the druggist, "Why, I always supposed he had enough money to buy his own cigarets!"

Iva Jordan, who was my first schoolteacher nearly 40 years ago, had a stroke while I was out west. Bertha and Iva Jordan live all alone on the farm, just a mile from us across the fields but two miles if you go around the road.

Will Jordan was Bertha's husband. I always remember him as a wonderful man, first because he was kind to children like me, and second because he always wore nice leather gloves to work in, whereas most farmers spurn gloves. Will died a long time ago, and Bertha and Iva have gone it alone on the farm ever since then.

Iva's left side is paralyzed. She can just wiggle the fingers on her hand, that's all. They have a hospital bed for her in the west room, and she is quite comfortable.

All these years Bertha and Iva had a hired hand or two, which they could well afford. But now they are in a predicament, because everybody has gone to the Army and they can't get a man anywhere. Bertha has to do everything herself, as well as look after Iva. They don't know how they'll get through the winter, but I suppose they'll manage somehow.

The stroke didn't affect Iva's face, nor her speech. She says maybe it would be a good thing if it had, for she just talks everybody to death. She says twice visitors have just got up and left after about ten minutes with her, because she wouldn't let them get a word in. But as she says, what's the use of having visitors if they won't listen to you?

* * *

I can't see that the war has affected our farming neighborhood very much at all, except that none of the young men are left.

Farmers set groaning boards almost the way they used to, and I don't know of any serious shortage of anything. In the country stores you can still find things that have long been extinct in the city. The crops are good, and nearly everybody is getting things fixed up around the farm and getting a little ahead.

Nobody from our neighborhood has been killed in action yet, although two have died in camp of ordinary illness. In a vacant lot on Main St., where a store burned down nearly 30 years ago and nothing was ever built in its place, they have a huge signboard bearing the names of everybody in our township who is serving with the armed forces.

Oddly enough, my name is on it, although technically I'm not in the armed forces at all. But I'm proud that they waived the technicality and included me. And oddly enough again, although I'm a civilian and also older than all the others, I guess I've seen more action so far than anyone else on the list.

Here at home I see the veterans of the last war, most of them my contemporaries, and for some strange reason I feel more easy and at home with the boys of this war than with my old cronies.

I suppose that's because some mysterious fate has merely delayed for a year or two the arrival of my inevitable rheumatics. But I carry my liniment all the time anyhow, just in case. Nobody's pulling any of this youth-stuff wool over my eyes.

PLANNING COMM DEVELOPS HERE

Committee Chairmen Are Named For Detailed Activities

The embryo of the Manistique Planning Commission took on definite form last week with the appointment of committee heads with power to act in a broad capacity.

Acting on the premise that "haste makes waste," the Planning Commission is being set up slowly and deliberately after considerable study and discussion. Most popular with the local Commission as well as Planning groups throughout the Nation, is the Albert Lea plan of postwar development. This plan is the result of an envisioned study of the probable postwar situation with logical methods of counteracting problems that arise. It also outlines methods of setting up projects.

Committee chairmen named to date by Commission chairman A. J. Cayia include:

Elmer Lundstrom—Men in service.

A. J. Cayia—Industrial survey.

Otmer Schuster — Agricultural community market.

Everett E. Cookson—City community market.

Fred H. Hahne — Purchasing power.

Dr. George Shaw — Ordinary employment and expenditures.

Charles D. Manson — Repairs and new projects.

Clarence Cowman—Labor availability.

William J. Cook—Publications and informational sources. Each of the committee heads will enlist the aid of persons outside the Commission to assist in the work, it was decided. Each division will be thoroughly studied and discussed, and committee chairmen will be responsible for the results required in their particular division.

Regular meetings of the Planning Commission are scheduled for the second Wednesday in each month, but special meetings will take place whenever necessary.

Singed By Flame As Woman Flees Burning House

Mrs. Julius Larson, narrowly escaped serious injury at 10:18 a. m. Monday when her home at 228 Maple street caught fire.

Flame singed her hair as she opened a door to the back wing of the house. She told firemen she was upstairs when she first smelled smoke. When she went to the back to the house to investigate, smoke and flame poured into the kitchen. She apparently shut the door which stopped the fire from going into the kitchen.

Firemen believed the blaze started from an overheated furnace located in the back wing of the house. The entire contents of this room was charred and the flames spread to an enclosed garret above.

Dense smoke and a west wind made it difficult to extinguish the fire. However, within 30 minutes the fire was under control. No fire damage was done to the house, proper, but considerable damage was done by smoke and water.

Damage ws estimated at more than $900. It was covered by insurance, it was reported.

GIVEN STORY IN PAMPHLET

Wife Of Gladstone Man Devoting Time To Service

Under the heading "'Beauty in Coveralls' Chosen Sub-Ways Personality of Week" there appeared in a service publication at Enid, Oklahoma, a story about and picture of Lu Brown, wife of Pvt. Herschel Brown, of this city. Pvt. Brown is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Brown, Delta avenue.

The story follows:

"One of the original 'spark plugs,' Mari Lucille Brown prefers to be known as 'Lu.'

"Spark plug is not only her department, but the term also describes this sparkling 19-year-old brunette.

"Lu is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Deeds of Garber. She spent four very eventful years in Garber high school graduating with the class of 1941.

"She sang in the glee club and played the drums in the band. In dramatics, she took part in both the junior and senior class plays.

"Lu's extra-curricular work included membership in the F. H. C. club, the girls' swimming team and an interpretive dancing group.

"Her family is just naturally an all-out-for-the-service family so Lu, not to be outdone, joined the Enid defense training school.

"On January 12, 1943 she came to the 29th sub-depot to clean, sandblast and test sparkplugs.

"The gadgets and machines in the spark plug department are Greek to your reporter but Lu knows what they are and can operate them efficiently.

"At one time the fabric department needed extra workers and Lu was a willing aid. But she's back 'keeping 'em flying' in her own department now.

"Lu has a sister employed at the Harvard, Neb., sub-depot; one brother is in the Marines and two others are in the Army—one stationed in Hawaii. And stationed at the Norman air base is another brother who is a Naval aviation instructor.

"Her husband is Pvt. Herschel Brown of the 957th Guard Squadron, EAAF. The only civilian members of her family are a brother living in Enid and a sister who is a deputy in the Garfield county court house.

"Lu is an enthusiastic war workers but plan sto settle down to home and family after the war is won."

SAFETY HINTS GIVEN BY CHIEF

Drivers Urged To Take Extra Care These Days

While youngsters enjoyed the new light snowfall, police and safety authorities yesterday urged motorists to practice greater caution because of additional traffic due to war activties.

"Drivers must be extra careful and adjust speed to conditions," declared Chief of Police Torval Kallerson. "Let this light snow serve as a warning of more severe storms to come and prepare for safe winter driving."

Chief Kallerson took the occasion to remind drivers that the old phrase, "I skidded-" is no longer an excuse for accidents.

"The nation is at war. Lives, man-hours, and cars must be conserved in 'The war at home' by practical methods. Wishfull thinking—hoping you won't skid or get stuck—won't help. Aside from hurting yourself, you may blockade war workers and shipments," he declared.

When severe snow and ice conditions do arrive, although street and highway departments will do everything possible to keep roads open, drivers must be prepared to practice the following public safety rules (or else leave cars in garage) where conditions demand

1. Adjust speeds to conditions.
2. Keep vital winter equipment in operating condition. Ths means windshield wiper - defroster for adequate vision; tire chains ready and in use where needed on packed snow and ice.
3. Slow down well in advance of intersections. Follow other vehicles at safe distances. Apply brakes lightly and intermittently. Normal application of brakes on an icy or snow surface, particularly without tire chains, may lock wheels and throw vehicle out of control.

Grier Ivory Gets Buck In 2 Minutes

Grier Ivory, local druggist, says that getting a buck is really a simple matter.

Ivory is hunting with Sgt. Willard Wixom, Vincent P. Johnson, H. J. Miller, Walter Tang and Trooper George Strong on Chippeny Creek north of Rapid River.

Yesterday morning he walked out at daybreak to a likely looking spot selected before the season opened and hadn't even gotten comfortably settled when a fine buck came into sight and went down before the hunter's shot. It was a 6-pointer of medium size.

Hunters at the John Dementer and Jerry Clark camp this week at Mashek are Andre Broutin, Bill Ramsey and Bill Bourswa of Detroit, and Victor Karnitz, Blaine Clauson, Edmond Stevens, John Dementer and Jerry Clark of Gladstone.

They don't want your tears

"DON'T CRY. Don't let them see you cry!" whispers the older Red Cross Worker.

And as the litters of wounded come up the gangplank of the hospital ship, the young novice swallows, shuts her eyes for an instant, and nods

They don't want our tears . . . these boys of ours Not though they face a future that at first can seem harder than death.

They want our courage . . . they want our resolution Courage and resolution to match and sustain their own.

Courage to keep us going on with this great task—no matter what it may cost these coming months in blood and sweat.

Resolution to back the boys who are taking these risks, with every breath that's in us, and every dollar that we can rake or scrape

The boys realize, far more than we can, how fast war uses up machines, ammunition, equipment.

The guns and tanks that took Hill 609 in Tunisia had to be rebuilt or replaced before they could thunder down upon Messina and Naples.

The landing barges that brought our men to the perilous beaches of Salerno must be repaired and reoutfitted before they can drive ashore in France or the Balkans.

We cannot win the war with the bullets our bonds bought last summer. Those bullets are already buried in Jap and Nazi graves And another horde of the desperate, cornered enemy is coming on.

Bullts and shells . . . tanks and guns . . . ships and planes. These are the things the boys are asking us for . . . the boys at the front and the boys behind them who will never again do things with two hands, or walk with two feet, or see with two eyes

They don't ask us to give what they have given. They only ask us to skip the easy tears . . . to invest our money instead of spending it . . to lend the mere money price of Victory.

They only ask us to buy War Bonds.

Washington, West Coast Orphan, Meets Southern Cal. In Rose Bowl

RUNNING ATTACK BOOSTS HUSKIES

Loss of Navy And Marine Stars To Be Felt At Pasadena

BY JIM HUTCHESON

Seattle, Nov. 15. (AP)—From the orphan's of war to the Rose Bowl—

That's the long jump made by the University of Washington football team. The Rose Bowl committee's selection of the Huskies to meet Southern California in the richest of the post-season gridiron stakes, with the Pacific coast conference title on the line, was a reward which Washington supporters have been pulling for all along.

Washington became the orphan of west coast football when the northern division of the conference folded on the eve of the first scheduled games. With Washington having the only Navy-Marine enrollment in the division, it looked too one-sided for fun—or for finances.

Team Nobody Knows

The Huskies rolled through their four salvaged games with 150 points to 26 to gain a powerhouse reputation on the home front. But, except for its impressive 27-7 upset of the March Field Flyers, Washington remains the team nobody knows outsde the Pacific northwest.

A powerful running attack gave Washington its start toward Pasadena. The team ranks fourth in the nation in total offensive yardage, with an average of 375 per game. Of that, 292 yards are by rushing.

The team, suffering an acute shortage of reserves, was built around Washington Navy-Marine holdovers and a trio of transfers from Washington State, with one freshman and one 4-F'er thrown in.

In comparing Washington and U. S. C. records, don't put too much mazuma on the Huskies' 27-7 victory over March Field and Southern California's 35-0 loss to the Flyers.

Washington's Rose Bowl outfit won't have the punch of the team that beat the Flyers. U. S. C. lost to the Flyers after the mid-term transfer of several of its stars for officers training. Washington's abbreviated season was completed before transfers cut into the squad. But they cut hard, taking the west coast's two highest scorers, fullback Pete Susick and halfback Jay Stoves. Tony Bulchunas, a starting tackle, also was lost.

Must Patch Gaps

Replacements will be one of Coach Ralph (Pest) Welch's big jobs upon resumption of practice after thanksgiving, but the game wll fulfill his recent wish for a chance to play Southern California any where and any time.

Welch scouted the March Field-Southern California contest Saturday.

"We figured a Washington-U. S. C. playoff in the Rose Bowl was the practical thing," commented Washington Athletic Manager Roland Belshaw. "Most available easter nteams are built around navy men, too, and they are up against the 48-hour absence rule that prevented our having a playoff with U. S. C. any time except during the year-end leave period."

The Sports Parade

By Ken Gunderman

Maj. John Kelly, who has kept us informed on sports activities in England, comes forth with another interesting letter, this time describing a football game played between a team from the U. S. paratroopers and one from the Air Corps.

He writes, "I suppose by now football is over in the U. P. and everyone is thinking about going hunting. So are we but there is no closed season on our game.

* * *

"I refereed an American football game at a big town near London Sunday between two cracking good teams, one from the paratroops and the other from the air corps. It was a little bit of America transplanted to England. Two big well coached, well equipped football teams, 15,000 people in the stadium, two army bands that drilled between halves, cheerleaders and mascots. All that was lacking was a few hot dog salesmen and a few drunks being tossed out. The paratroopers were too good for the air corps and won, 27-0.

* * *

"Stasica of the winners, former All American from the U. of S. Carolina, was the best back I have eve seen anywhere. They had a lot of former college stars and really looked like a Class A college team. The losers had Barto, formerly of the Chicago Cardinals, and Erickson, former Minnesota star ,and they were as good as the average college stars.

"We caught three clipping fouls, a couple holdings, some offsides and backfield in motion but we had no weird ones. My umpire was Capt. Martin of Coe. The head linesman was Lt. Pat Dawson of Wisconsin and field judge was Lacey of Boston college. Here is the payoff. Between halves tea was served to the officials in their dressing room. Quite good.

"I am enclosing a clipping showing what some of the British newspapers say about our American games. The civilians turn out in droves for both baseball and football games. Proceeds are turned over to charities. The Red Cross sponsors most of these games and is doing a nice job of it. Gerald Fitzgerald, former St. Paul sports writer, is in charge of the program."

The clipping enclosed in Major Kelly's letter gives this British description of American football:

* * *

"As soon as the whistle blows, the centre, (that's the way they spelled it) who has been crouching bird-like over the ball, hurls it through his legs to one of the backs, while on either side of him guards, tackles and ends leap from a kneeling position into awful life. As the guards, tackles and ends of the opposing team—many of whom weigh more than 200 pounds, spring to action at the same moment, an appalling sodden crash is heard. The two lines have met . . . the ball is eventually discovered under a heap of writhing players. Those who appear to be seriously injured are carried off and substitutes drawn from their army of reserves. The referee and two assistants examine the ball and decide the precise spot at which it has come to earth. A couple of men with a surveyor's tape run on the field and measure how far the side has advanced. And the operation is repeated. So it appears to the novice, to the untaught spectator, but the knowing eyes see intricacy and speed, tactics and strategy in the movement of every player."

* * *

They must be a playing a different game over there than our conception of American football.

ANOTHER TIGER INDUCTED

Detroit, Nov. 15. (AP)—The Detroit Tigers announced today that second baseman Jimmy Bloodworth had been inducted into the army at Apalachicola, Fla. Bloodworth, 25 years old and a father, is the 30th Tiger on the service list. Bloodworth came to Detroit two years ago with Roger Cramer in a four-player deal with the Washington Senators. He batted .238 last summer but drove in a relatively high total of 55 runs.

VICTORY SEEMS CINCH FOR U. M.

Wolverines Average 32 Points A Game While Bucks Hit Only 18

BY JERRY LISKA

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 15. (AP)—Michigan's Wolverines have averaged 32 points a game in winning seven out of eight football starts and Ohio State's Buckeyes have faltered along at an 18-point pace in taking three out of eight contests.

Thus it would seem that the Wolverines can't miss closing their season here Saturday with a victory, thereby grabbing at least a share of the Western Conference championshp, depending on how Purdue fares against Indiana the same day.

BUT there is more to this 40th meeting of the ancient rivals than meets the eye and it doesn't involve spotting the Buckeyes 14 points.

At least two important factors should enter pre-game discussions. For one thing, the youthful Buckeyes, boasting a pair of distinct threats in Dean Sensanbaugher and Ernie Parks, will be hopped up to the boiling point by Coach Paul Brown who has a reputation as a hopper-upper of young lads.

Brown pulled the trick once, keying his 1941 team to battle the favored Wolverines to a 20-20 tie. That was his first season at Columbus and last year his Buckeyes won from Michigan 21-7, to clinch the conference title.

The other factor concerns injured Elroy Hirsch. It appears unlikely that Michigan's leading scorer will see more than limited acton, if he gets in the game at all. Wolverine coaches were satisfied with Bob Nussbaumer's performance in replacing Hirsch at left halfback against Wisconsin, but the Buckeyes can't be placed in the same class with the Badgers, especially next Saturday afternoon.

Probably Ohio State may be compared favorably with Indiana to whom the Buckeyes lost 20-14 in the closing seconds of play. Michigan defeated Indiana 23-6, but it should be recalled that after Hirsch was injured, the Wolverines had their hands full with the Hoosiers. Michigan's lead was shaved to 14-6 midway in the thrd quarter and the Wolverine scoring thereafter was all contributed by Indiana's Bob Hoernschemeyer, who was trapped for a safety and tossed a pass that was intercepted for a touchdown.

Football Briefs

Camp Grant, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP)—Coach Charley Bachman today excused the Camp Grant football team from practicing as a reward for the fine second half showing against the undefeated Iowa Seahawks Saturday.

The Warriors outplayed the Seahawks after trailing 21 to 0 at the half. The next three days will be devoted to intensive drills for Camp Grant's return game with Fort Riley, Kas., in Rockford, Ill., Saturday.

This will be the last game of the Warriors' season, which thus far has brought two victories, two ties and five defeats in contests with some of the midwest's strongest teams.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP)—Northwestern's Wildcats will be at peak strength for Saturday's football finale against Illinois at Dyche Stadium. Coach Lynn Waldorf said the Cats came through the Notre Dame game Saturday with only a few minor bumps and bruises but gave them a rest today anyhow. They studied motion pictures of last Saturday's game.

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 15 (AP)—The Purdue Boilermakers' new lightweight backfield combination emphasized today speed and deception and soft-pedaled power plays in preparations for their season finale Saturday against Indiana's all-civie team.

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP)—Illinois football hopes will rest again Saturday on its pair of fleet halfbacks, Eddie McGovern and Eddie Bray. Coach Ray Eliot said he was "proud of the way our offense has gone with these kids." Bray averaged 11 yards per try and McGovern eight against Ohio State.

Bloomington, Ind., Nov. 15 (AP)—Indiana University's football team began five days of secret practice today in preparation for their 46th annual game with the Hoosiers' traditional foes, Purdue.

Coach A. H. (Bo) McMillin said that, barring further injuries, his squad would be at peak strength Saturday.

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 15 (AP)—Ohio State's Bucks, last-second victor over Illinois Saturday by a 29-26 margin, studied motion pictures of the game today and planned a defense against Michigan, their last foe of the season. Coach Paul Brown gloomily remarked that Ohio "shot the works against Illinois and now we're stuck with a tough Michigan game, and there's nothing we can do about it."

More Deer Hunters Than Usual Throng Northwoods

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Deer hunters in larger numbers than usual, despite limitations on gasoline and ammuntion, found excellent hunting conditions Monday as they spread through northern Michgan forests for the opening of the 16-day season.

Reports of the kill were scanty, but one of the first to get his buck was Thomas Redmond of Detroit who, hunting in the Twin Lakes area near Cheboygan, shot a ten-point buck estimated at about 235 pounds. He brought the animal out and immediately returned to the woods to hunt for bear.

Snow covered the ground in the Upper Peninsula where temperatures ranged from 20 to 25 degrees. Snow depth in the eastern part was 8 to 12 inches, in the central portion 2 to 6 inches, and n the western end, 5 to 15 inches. Some side roads were impassable.

In the lower peninsula, snow was five inches deep in the Boyne City and Mio areas, 1 to 2 inches near Atlanta and Traverse City, and a tenth of an inch near Gladwin, but other areas reported the ground bare. Greatest concentrations of hunters were reported in the Pigeon River area and Wilderness Park near Mackinaw City.

Conservation department agents made 65 arrests in the Upper Peninsula, mostly for hunting before the season opened at daybreak, headlighting and having loaded guns in cars, and 94 arrests in the lower peninsula for similar reasons.

Office of Price administration officials moved to start hearings in the cases of deer hunters cited by investigators for apparent violation of ration regulations.

Jack Zaremba, Grand Rapids district OPA official, said at least 1,500 hunters in that district would be required to explain to local ration boards how they managed gasoline for their hunting trips. He said a list of that number of automobile licenses had been received from Mackinaw City, where hunters congregated in long lines to cross the Straits, and that names of the car owners would be turned over to local boards.

The state highway department reported in Lansing that traffic conditions at the Straits were back to normal Monday after a four-day car concentration which forced ferry boats off their regular schedules. At noon the boats were back to their 90-minute schedules, carrying 10 to 15 cars per trip.

Between Nov. 11 to Nov. 15, the highway department said, 7,463 cars carrying 13,984 passengers crossed the Straits. A year ago, records show, 8,588 vehicles carrying 14,419 passengers went to the Upper Peninsula.

Two Detroit OPA enforcement officials left for Cheboygan to hold hearings on ration violation charges against deer hunters.

At Baldwin, Justice R. O. Gleason held court at 12:10 a. m. Monday and fined five hunters, three from the Detroit area, for conservation violations. The hunters thus were enabled to get into the woods for the start of the deer season.

Absences were above the normal for Monday in war plants in a number of Michigan cities, as the hunting army moved into the woods. One Pontiac plant reported absenteeism three times normal. Plants in Muskegon, Flint, Grand Rapids, Port Huron, Grand Haven and other cities indicated absenteeism ranged from normal to 15 per cent above normal.

ALUMNI BEATS TROJANS, 27-6

St. Joseph Outpowered By Veterans In Cage Opener Here

The St. Joseph high school basketball team was defeated by a St. Joseph Alumni team, 27-6, in the season's basketball opener at the William Bonifas gymnasium Sunday afternoon.

The Alumni, composed of some of the outstanding players of former St. Joseph teams, controlled the ball much of the game but the Trojans failed to cash in on the scoring opportunities that they did get.

During the first half particularly, play was slowed down considerably because of the slippery floor. The floor had been oiled Sunday morning and failed to dry sufficiently by game time. With uncertain footing, the teams played cautiously but the play livened in the second half.

Phil Brazeau scored 12 points for the Alumni to take individual scoring honors.

LIQUOR STOCKS HIT NEW TOPS

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—The stock market went on what might be called a "binge" with the liquor stocks today and many of these favorites jumped to new tops for the year or longer with exceptionally wide gains.

While the list, generally, held to a narrowly mixed course, the alcoholic group pushed up at the start as American Distilling announced it would sell to shareholders at cost its 245,000 barrels of whiskys. This spectacular performer, which sold as low as 15 3-8 last spring, opened nearly two hours late on a block of 16,700 shares at 100, up 25 3-4 from Saturday. It continued to advance to 111½, then met profit taking and dropped to 95½. It finished at 97½, up 25¼ points net on the day.

Others in the distilling section ending around 1 to 6 higher included Distillers Corp., Hiram Walker, Schenley, National Distillers, Park & Tilford and Allied Mills. Action of the senate judiciary committee in voting an inquiry into liquor industry practices helped stem the upswing in this department.

Dealings were relatively quiet from the start, except for the liquors, and final quotations in most departments were mildly uneven.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was unchanged at 48. Of 781 issues traded, 306 were up, 276 down and 199 unchanged. Transfers totalled 682,490 shares compared with 796,367 in the preceding full session.

Preferreds of American Power & Light and American & Foreign Power moved up 1 to 3 points. Lesser improvement was retained by Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, American Telephone, Western Union "A", U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Goodrich, J. I. Case, General Electric and Westinghouse.

On the offside were Chrysler, Northern Pacific, N. Y. Central, Pennsylvania, Goodyear, Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, International Harvester, Douglas Aircraft, Du Pont, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville, Anaconda and Standard Oil (J.N.).

In the curb Brown-Forman Distillers was a lively member, running up 3 points or so and closing 1 7-8 in front. Plus marks were attached to Aluminum of America, Colonial Air Lines, Cities Service, Electric Bond & Share and Lehigh Coal. Aluminum, Ltd., dropped 2 3-4 and Phoenix Securities 1 1-8. Turnover here was 148,380 shares versus 177,640 last Friday.

BOND SESSION QUIET

New York, Nov. 15 (AP)—The bond market underwent little change in position today in one of the quietest sessions in several weeks.

On average, rails lost trifling amounts and other major groups held at Saturday's levels. Sales of $5,009,500 compared with $7,878,600 last Friday.

Lack of speculative activity on either side of the market was most noticeable among the medium priced rails that were leaders on the upturn late last week after the drastic decline at the start of that period. Investment rated corporates, along with U. S. governments, held a generally steady undertone, although activity was at a minimum in most issues.

Emerging with small gains were Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis 4s, New York Central convertible 3⅛s, Pacific Gas 3 3-4s, Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron 5s, 'Frisco 4½s, Seaboard 6s, Western Maryland 5½s, Armour 4s and Boston & Maine 4½s.

Losing ground were Central of Georgia first 5s, Burlington 4½s, Gulf States Steel 4½s, International Great Northern 6s, International Telephone 4½s, Missouri Pacific 5s, Morris & Essex 3½s and New Haven 4½s.

New South Wales 5s and Peru 6s and 7s were among foreign loans showing modest improvement.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—Prices worked higher in the grain pits today under buying stimulated by reports that 1944 winter wheat goals were not likely to be achieved, heavy disappearance of wheat during the first quarter of the marketing season, and a good demand for cash grains.

Although gains ranged to around a cent in wheat and rye, trading was not particularly active. Grain experts were closely watching developments in Washington regarding food subsidies. They expected that the congressional battle over subsidies would have considerable influence on grain prices.

At the close wheat was 3-4 to 1 1-8 higher, December $1.58 3-8 to $1.58 5-8; rye was up 5-8 to 7-8, December $1.12½ to $1.12 3-8; oats were ahead 1-8 to 5-8, December 78½, and barley was up 3-8 to 5-8, December $1.17 5-8.

In Memoriam

In loving memory of our dearly beloved daughter and sister, Shirley Ann, who was taken from our family circle, November 16, 1942.

A ray of sunshine
Has gone from our home,
And a place is vacant today.
And the little girl
That we loved so well
Seems so very far away.
But we're trying to live
Just day by day,
Trusting the Father for light—
Knowing that some day
She'll be with us again
In the Home in the City of Light.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Aker
and Michael Raymond, Jr.,
Clare Marie and Mary Alice,

Local Board Spurs Reclassification Of Registrants

Faced with the prospects of a draft call for December nearly double that for November, the Delta county draft board held several meetings the past week to refer a large number of registrants for examination. A large percentage of them are pre-war fathers.

Registrants who were examined last week or earlier and were not rejected at the local screening tests are certain to be included in the December induction call, but it still is uncertain whether the large number of registrants slated for examination next Wednesday can be processed in time for the December call.

The date on which the Delta county selectees will be called for induction in December will determine whether registrants who take their local screening tests next Wednesday can be included in that group.

20 Days Required

A minimum of 20 days is required between the time in which a registrant is called for his local screening test and the date of induction. A ten day period is allowed following classification into 1-A for the right to appeal and induction notices must be mailed to registrants an additional 10 days before the induction date.

Men who are examined Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 17 could not be reclassified into 1-A before Nov. 18 at the earliest, so their 10 day appeal period would not expire before Nov. 22. If the December induction date for Delta county registrants is Dec. 8 or earlier, men examined here next Wednesday could not be included in that group, unless they waived their rights or volunteered for induction.

More than half of the registrants slated for examinations next Wednesday are now residing out of the county and will be transferred to other draft boards for the examination, it was reported.

The men called for physical examinations here Wednesday afternoon at the American Legion headquarters, 716 Ludington street, include the following:

Wilmore K. Berglund, Escanaba; Julius Earl Sorby, Escanaba; Willard Jess Laviolette, Escanaba; Donald Loynal Chase, Gladstone; Arthur Wilfred Derusha, Escanaba; Thomas Alvin Hite, Gladstone; Floyd Paul Anutta, Escanaba; Frederick C. Malnor, Gladstone; John Bernard McGlynn, Gladstone.

Eugene Joseph Gillespie, Escanaba; Leo Francis Hillewaert, Gladstone; Edgar Arntzen, Escanaba; Leslie Lloyd Caswell, Rapid River; Erling D. Erickson, Gladstone; Albert Elmer Nelson, Escanaba; John Joseph Valiquette, Garden; Louis Henry Tousignant, Schaffer.

Verner Johnson, Brampton; Chas. John Gorenchan, Escanaba; Roy E. Herbert, Escanaba; Vernon J. Lang, Escanaba; Conan Edward Fisher, Escanaba; Alfred Jeffrey LaCrosse, Escanaba; Edward Ritchie, Nahma; Thomas R. Millington, R. 1, Escanaba; Verne Vern Vandeville, Wells; Charles Vernon Segerstrom, Ensign; and Fred Raymond Teal, Bark River.

George Victor Rajala, of Gladstone, has been transferred to the Delta county from Iron Mountain for his physical examination.

PFC. Roy Scheers Gets Silver Star In North Africa

Private First Class Roy Scheers, nephew of Mrs. Frances Zeegers, 625 South 16th Street, Escanaba, has been awarded the Silver Star for gallantry in action. He is a member of a regiment of the Ninth Division.

Pfc. Scheers' citation reads, "Roy Scheers, 16020935, Company "F", for gallantry in action. On the 23rd of April 1943 at Sedjenane Valley, Tunisia, during the heavy counter-attack by the Germans on Djebel , Pfc. Scheers distinguished himself as a fearless and efficient combat soldier in close contact with an enemy of superior strength. Pfc. Scheers operated his machine gun in the face of a devastating enemy attack rendered more dangerous by the great quantity of grenades being hurled at the position in an effort to render the position untenable. Though wounded, Pfc. Scheers remained at his position until the enemy had been dispersed.

He participated in the landing and invasion of French Morocco and the battles of Maknassy and Sedjenane in North Africa and in the Sicilian campaign.

Before entering the army on October 1, 1940, Pfc. Scheers was a well known farmer of Cornell.

STUDENTS WILL HEAR WRITER

Anno Bird Stewart To Lecture Here On Wednesday

Anna Bird Stewart, a successful story writer, actress and poet, will present a lecture, "So You Want to Write", at the Escanaba senior high school auditorium Wednesday, November 17, at 10 a. m., Principal Edward E. Edick has announced.

In this lecture to the high school students, Miss Stewart will relate how she became a writer, how she gets material for her stories, how the war is restoring the lost art of letter writing, and will describe the fun of creating with words.

Anna Bird Stewart was graduated from the University of Cincinnati where she founded the famous Comedy Club. With Stuart Walker she started the Portmanteau theatre in Indianapolis and later was associated with Jessie Bonstelle in Buffalo and Detroit.

Successful as a press agent, writer and teacher, Miss Stewart now devotes her entire time to writing, travel and lecturing. She has traveled widely in Europe and taught literature a few years ago at West Riding, Yorkshire. Her publications include numerous books of verse for adults and children, operettas, plays and stories.

Friers To Speak On Pan-American Highway Tonight

The speaker at Town Hall here tonight will be Robert Friers, young foreign correspondent for a number of newspapers. He will speak and show his latest motion pictures in color along the route of the Pan-American Highway. The program will begin at 8 p. m.

WILL PRESIDE

John Gregory, president of the Spanish club and a member of the Victory Speakers bureau of the Escanaba high school, will preside at the Town Hall program this evening. He will introduce Mr. Friers and will act as moderator at the conclusion of the lecture.

Friers gained early fame as a hiker when he started out at the age of 12 and during the next thirteen years visited 36 different countries and covered over 130,000 miles. In 1939 he made a trip completely around the world, but since that time he has been writing and taking pictures exclusively in Latin America.

During the past summer he has been making his seventh tour south of the Rio Grande. In roaming the byways of Mexico and Central America he has been especially interested in finding out just what our allies down there are contributing to the war effort.

Friers knows that country very well as in two previous years he has hiked all the way to the Panama Canal. His illustrated lecture this year deals with the new Pan-American Highway south of Mexico City, the story of Mexico's new and spectacular volcano, and the development of scarce tropical products in the Central American area.

During the past summer he has represented over thirty-mid-western newspapers and is an accredited speaker with the Coordinator of Inter-American Affairs.

Home Christmas Lights To Shine

Lights on Christmas trees in American homes are unaffected by the plea of the War Production Board to conserve on decorative lighting this holiday season. Paul W. Romig, manager of the Green Bay District WPB Office said that the purpose of the request to cut down on holiday lighting was to eliminate extravagant outdoor illumination and display as a fuel, power and bulb conservation measure.

Lengthened winter nights are putting an extra load on electricity production, Romig said, and coal shortage makes it necessary to resort to every possible saving of power. In addition, there is an acute shortage of electric light bulbs.

Severe Peace To Ripen Germans For New Hitler

(This is the last of four articles outlining Europe's situation today, and its prospects for tomorrow, based upon seven months of observation from neutral Sweden.)

BY JOHN K. COLBURN

Stockholm, (AP)—If the German people get too severe a peace, are deprived of an army of any sort, and are given no role in construction of a democratic Europe, they undoubtedly will develop an inferiority complex making them fit victims for another Hitler.

Reports from Munich say that southern Germany wants to be separated from Prussia. Such reports are not new. There always have been unbridgeable gulfs between north and south Germany. Austria and Prussia are not united in their views.

Some observers see quick possibilities for erasing nazism from Germany, but generations of evolution may be necessary to smother Prussian militarism.

Always Dangerous

Germany has demonstrated that a regime, in itself, means nothing. Both as a monarchy and as a republic she constituted a danger to her neighbors. All Germans cannot be tarred with the same brush and many may be peace-minded. But considerable training appears to be necessary to eliminate the impotence of German democracy, which proved incapable of resisting her war-minded elements.

Germany is likely to be under military control for some time before any effort is made to have her resume normal political functions. Thousands of her political leaders who haven't been executed are in concentration camps.

Much of Europe undoubtedly will also be under some type of foreign or national military control during the immediate postwar period. The Netherlands government provided a tip of what may be expected with a blueprint for the reestablishment of a government in Holland after the invasion.

When the day of liberation comes, extraordinary martial laws will be proclaimed for Holland, with the civil administration conducted by Dutch military forces of reoccupation. Queen Wilhelmina will return later and instruct the cabinet and the Prime Minister to form a new government which is expected to consist mainly of those men who remained in Holland during the German occupation.

Postwar Complications Seen

Like the Netherlands, all the exiled governments have promised their peoples the right to select new governments when the postwar situation is stabilized. How soon that will be is likely to vary with local conditions. It will be much easier, for instance, in small countries like Norway and Holland than in France or Italy. But the situation is complicated in Greece, Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia and Poland, where territorial questions must be settled.

The German satellites—Finland, Hungary and Rumania—face political housecleanings. All have been endeavoring to maintain that theirs has been a defensive war, but such expressions have been heard only since allied successes changed the complexion of the war to one of eventual defeat for the Nazis.

The fate of the Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania is still uncertain. Leaders in exile of these countries hope they may be maintained as independent states under the Atlantic Charter guarantees, although the Soviet newspaper Pravda in February said the Baltic republics are "parts of Soviet Russia's own territory."

Likewise it is uncertain what form the restoration of Austria may take.

The Germans took a cue from Churchill's suggested formation of a federation of nations by attempting to organize a Balkan bloc. The Wilhelmstrasse even announced its organization, but had to back down when Hungary and Bulgaria declined to aid the Nazis military in the case of an allied invasion.

Neutrals Change Attitude

Russia has been able to keep an ear turned to developments in the Balkans by maintaining relations with Bulgaria, which is at war with the United States and Britain. The situation is similar to that of Finland, which is at war with Russia and, against her will, with England, but continues on diplomatic terms with the United States.

The changing war tides of the last six months have switched the political outlook of the neutrals. Sweden halted the transit of German troops over Swedish railways to Norway and Finland. Portugal provided the Azores as bases for Britain. Spain withdrew its blue division from the Leningrad front. Turkey became a nonbelligerent ally of Britain instead of claiming neutrality.

Franco's political position, won with the aid of Mussolini and Hitler, is wobbly and there is much talk of restoring the monachy to Spain.

The political evolution of Europe is expected to provide just as dramatic a show as today's bloody fighting. Out of it will come a new Germany, a new France, a new Italy, new respect for Russian courage and resources—a "European Russia"—and new admiration for the British will that would not collapse in the face of distaster.

The United States as an "arsenal of democracy" helped turn the tide of battle in favor of the allies. As a symbol of how millions of peoples of assorted nationalities can cooperate in a democratic form of government and work and live together in peace, the United States is being counted upon by millions of Europeans to participate actively in the new European and world order.

Norway Boy Wins Prize For Garden

Lansing, Nov. 16 (AP)—Championship in the state 4-H club victory garden contest went to Frank Groeneveld of Norway, in a field of more than 10,000 contestants, the office of civilian defense announced today.

Groeneveld, who is 17 years old; Wayne Cobb of Selkirk, Ogemaw county; Norma Graham, Hillsdale Route 1; Anne O'Connor, Hastings, Route 3; and Maxine Wait, Cass county, near constantine; each received a $25 War Bond as a prize for excellence of their gardens, their vegetable exhibits, their report on garden projects and their records as 4-H members.

Groeneveld reported he derived $402.02 income from his garden, from an investment of $56.72, and figured his profit at $1.25 an hour for the time spent on the project.

NEW CHEMICAL MAY CURB T-B

Experiments Being Made With Diasone At Sanitarium

BY WILLIS YOUNG

Waukegan, Ill., (AP)—A sanitarium is making the first trial on human beings of a new chemical which may control tuberculosis—something sought for centuries—and physicians testing the drug report it may rank as one of the greatest advances in treatment of the disease.

The drug is diasone, one of several phosphorus-containing compounds called sulfones with which scientists have been experimenting to find a remedy, the only cure at present being the body's own resistance.

Diasone is not one of the "sulfa" compounds, but physicians say it holds promise of controling tuberculosis chemically almost as effectively as the sulfonamides control streptococcus and other infections.

Preliminary Report

Dr. Charles K. Petter, superintendent of the Lake County Tuberculosis Sanitarium—the first institution in the United States to administer diasone to patients—has made an optimistic preliminary report.

He disclosed to the Lake County Medical Society that diasone "is the best we have found so far in our experience" and that he is convinced it will be "an extremely valuable adjunct to our modern treatment of tuberculosis."

"We are a long way from the final answer," he added, but expressed belief the sulfone compounds may be "pointing the way to the ultimate goal."

Dr. Petter said diasone had been administered to 108 patients in the sanitarium, a few of them for as long as nine months. Of this group, 30 received the drug less than 60 days and he added that noticeable improvement was observed as early as 60 days.

For example, there were 72 patients with tuberculosis of the lungs, nine "minimal" or least serious cases, 42 moderately advanced cases and 21 far advanced ones. Some have received the drug for 60 days, some for 90 days and others for 12 days or more.

Marked Improvement Shown

"An analysis of the therapeutic results shows 100 per cent improvement in all the minimal cases," Dr. Petter reported.

"Marked improvent was recorded in one-third of the 60-day group, one half of the 90 day and three-fourths of the 120 group. Moderate improvement was recorded in the remainder.

"Many of the patients in our group have not had best rest or strict 'rest cure' along with their chemotherapy."

Some patients suffered nausea and headache, lowering of the red count and hemoglobin content of the blood and blueness of the skin and a few had to discontinue the drug because of intolerance.

However, six patients who had gastic disturbances had complete relief when it was taken in coated capsules and several resumed taking the drug after a rest without any recurrence of toxic effects.

INVENTED VENT

Joseph LaLande, a French astronomer, in 1805, devised a circular vent in the top of a parachute, a feature which has been used in parachutes down to the present time.
